

SCRIPT DEBTS RUN HIGH

CREDITORS OFFERED THIRTY-FIVE CENTS ON DOLLAR.

Cause of Failure Attributed to Incompetency of Agents and Many Competing Companies.

The American Scrip company for reasons beyond its control, has been forced to quit business and has now closed its doors. The company is insolvent and has no assets of any nature to liquidate the indebtedness due its creditors. The company is now indebted to various creditors in the sum of approximately from $65,000 to $75,000 and nothing with which to pay those outstanding debts. The board of directors of the American Scrip company, which until recently was doing business in Dallas, passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, each and all of the offices of the American Scrip company are now being run at a financial loss to this company, and

Whereas, the financial affairs of the American Scrip company are now in a hopelessly insolvent condition which would make it unwise to attempt to conduct the business of the said company any longer, and

Whereas, it would be both unjust and unwise to the creditors and stockholders of this company to try to further continue the affairs of this company,

Therefore be it resolved, that the business of the American Scrip company is hereby ordered closed and no further business of any nature shall be undertaken by this company from and after this date.

Be it further resolved, that the proper authorities give notice at once to each and every office now run by the American Scrip company to close each and all of said offices and proceed to liquidate the affairs of this company as speedily as possible.

The downfall of this company was brought about in the attempt to run a new and untried business by inexperienced agents, a number of whom were utterly reckless in the expenditure of money and involving the company in heavy debts without the knowledge of the officers of the company, although trying hard to prevent same, and also the company's very unwise move in undertaking to do business in the east when neither the time, the conditions, nor the capital paid in justified such a movement, and also the springing up of competitors, which competitors destroyed its once very prosperous business, but like Samson of old, they likewise destroyed themselves.

A few days since, some of the board of directors, after a conference on the situation, decided they would raise among themselves, for which they receive no compensation whatever, a sum sufficient to guarantee to the creditors of the American Scrip company a payment of 35c. on the dollar in settlement of the claims against the American Scrip company. This offer was not made by the American Scrip company, but by some of the directors of the company. If the creditors accept this offer they simply wish them to receipt their bill in full to the American Scrip company.

What An Outsider Thinks.

McMinnville Register: "Up in Polk county they have started recall petitions against the county judge and the two county commissioners, giving as reasons violations of the law and irregularities of administration growing out of the expenditure of highway funds. It pains us to see our neighbors resort to this extremity, and we have a suspicion that the spirit of revenge may be the real motive. The judgement of the voters should be good enough at an election to choose capable and honest officials, and if it proves otherwise they ought to have pride enough to 'grin and bear' the term out rather than confess their poor judgment. In the case of gross culpability in office there are other legal means of ousting an officer, with less disturbance of the affairs of the office."

ACT QUICKLY.

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Dallas. Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger.

In time of kidney danger Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective.

Plenty of evidence of their worth.

W. H. Root, route No. 9, Salem, Oregon, says: "I believe a cold started kidney trouble in my case. Pres-quent action of the kidneys annoyed me day and night and sometimes I was unable to sleep. The passages of the kidney secretions were attended with a burning pain. If I tried to stoop, I had sharp twinges in the small of my back. I felt weak, tired and languid and was often dizzy. Nothing helped me until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. In less than a month, I felt like a different man and four boxes made me well. The pains went away and the kidney secretions became natural." (Statement given September 3, 1907.)

Over five years later Mr. Root said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills off and on when I catch cold on my kidneys and they always help me."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Root had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

ROADMASTER WALDO

J. FINN WILL RESIGN

Editor Observer: Having decided to submit my resignation to the county court at its meeting on August 6, as roadmaster for Polk county, I wish to state my reasons for so doing. Road work for the present year, with the exception of maintenance, is practically completed. While I like the work, and am desirous of seeing all roads in the county shape themselves into highways for commerce and pleasure, and a credit to the banner county of the state, I feel that the recall is unwarranted and I want to fight it from the standpoint of a taxpayer and a native citizen, and not as county roadmaster. I am aware that considerable of the discontent concerning road improvements is purely local, and rests with the roadmaster and not with the court, and for this further reason I do not want to be a hindrance to that body, and therefore this resignation.

I desire to assure the public that I have exerted myself in behalf of good roads for Polk county, and have not, to my knowledge, discriminated in any particular in favor of any given locality or individual. My best wishes for good work by road supervisors of the county will continue in the future as in the past.

WALDO FINN,
Roadmaster.

THIS AND THAT.

A man is seldom willing to admit that he has made a fool of himself.

A large, fat letter with a postage due stamp attached isn't the sort a man wants to receive unless he's in love.

There are many sign-posts on the highway of life and some of them are equipped with the finger of scorn.

Most of the applause is made down near the front, where the view is better.

When a girl's engagement is announced the other girls buzz around her and celebrate the event as a great achievement.

Shortly after a man loses his street car pass he becomes very patriotic.

"Remember, my son," admonished the fond parent, "a good name is more to be desired than great riches."

"Yes, but a fat purse is a good thing to lean on," replied the indolent son. Ministers may come and ministers may go, but the choir feud goes on forever.

What would be the result if we followed the advice we give to others? When a woman loses her temper she shows her age.

Naturally you think the opposition lies a good deal.

To live in your own home is a luxury rather than an economy.

Hedgehog Fian.

The hedgehog fish is a strange creature. It has a body covered with long thin spines. When in danger it follows the custom of the ordinary hedgehog to a certain extent, but in addition it puts its nose out of the water and swallows such a quantity of air that its body is blown out into the shape of a football, with sharply pointed spines bristling in every direction. This maneuver upsets its balance. Still it floats contentedly along on its back, quite safe against the attacks of its opponents, who are kept at bay by impenetrable armor.

The Way of the Cartoonist.

A correspondent notes our inquiry as to why a newspaper artist couldn't make a box without printing "soap" on it. He adds a few inquiries of his own to wit: "Why can't a cartoonist draw a barber without a comb stuck in his hair?" And "Do all drunks hold themselves up by means of lamp posts?" Also, "Why does a cartoonist always depict himself as wearing a flowing black Windsor tie?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Education Handicapped.

"Not at all well. Every time there are two men on bases and it's his turn to bat they bench him and give a pinch hitter a chance."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

OUST CANADA THISTLE

(By H. D. Scudder, O. A. C.)

For years farmers have reported small patches of the Canada thistle from different sections of Western Oregon. Recently this dangerous weed has become more general in its occurrence. It is so persistent and pernicious when once fairly started in a locality that farmers are running very large risks to neglect the first patches and permit it to spread.

The Canada thistle is a more difficult weed to get rid of than the mustard, for while the mustard is an annual, the Canada thistle is a perennial, living on from year to year through its persistent root system. Whether it makes seed or not, it continues to spread by means of its underground stems or horizontal roots. Fortunately, it is not a tumble weed and does not spread with such astonishing rapidity as does the tumbling mustard. If it did, this state would long ago have been a sea of Canada thistles, uninhabited by man. However, the plant starts in the first place from seeds brought in by grain or grass. Hence all seed should be examined before sowing to avoid the spreading of this dangerous pest in that way. Eradication methods vary according to the extent of the area infested. They are:

First—Plants should never be allowed to go to seed, as in the form of seed they may be carried some little distance by the wind, in the water of irrigation ditches, or in hay, manure, grain, etc.

Second—When this weed occurs only in small areas it should be cut close to the ground when in full bloom and the spot completely covered with tar or building paper, overlapped and weighted with rails or earth so that the light is completely excluded from the plants. This can be done only on level ground of course.

On more uneven ground a very heavy covering of straw from an old stack bottom or manure at least 1½ to 2 feet in depth, when settled may be used. In either case the covering should be left on the spot until the fall or the following spring it may be removed and the ground plowed, kept thoroughly cultivated until seeding time, and then put into a row crop such as corn, checkered so that it may be thoroughly cultivated throughout the following summer.

Or in place of corn, a smother crop of buckwheat or rape sown very thickly may be used.

Third—Where only a few scattered individual plants are found, these should be cut off just below the surface of the ground when they are in bloom and a generous handful of common salt thrown on the roots, or instead of the salt a small amount of gasoline may be applied.

Fourth—Where the Canada thistle occurs in a number of small patches or clumps scattered through a field these may best be handled either by smothering as previously described or by the use of sodium arsenate spray which is made by dissolving 1½ pounds of this salt in 52 gallons of water. This solution, applied with a small hand sprayer spread in the form of a fine mist so that the thistles are thoroughly covered just before they come into bloom, will kill back the tops to the ground. As often as they reappear they should be given another spraying. This method is very successful. As the spray is very poisonous, care should be taken not to inhale it or permit stock to pasture on the plants sprayed.

Fifth—Where the thistles are scattered generally over a large field, but as yet have not become firmly established, the above methods would not apply. In this case, after the crop had been removed from the field the land should be plowed in the fall and then thoroughly cultivated with the springtooth harrow which will turn out the roots and bring them to the surface where they will dry out and die. The following spring the ground should be plowed every four weeks and between times thoroughly cultivated with a spring-tooth up until July, when it may be seeded to a smother crop of buckwheat or rape fall plowing and cultivation again. Continue the next spring, and then put the ground into a thoroughly cultivated row crop such as corn, potatoes, roots, rape, etc., using the hoe to get every stray thistle that may appear.

Sixth—Where the thistle is growing thickly in large areas and has obtained a good hold, the best method is to use a thoroughly cultivated bare fallow. If the land has been in pasture so that the roots of the thistle are close to the surface, the ground may be plowed shallowly, then thoroughly cultivated with the springtooth harrow. If fair quantities of the roots are dragged out in this way it would probably be preferable to rake them off to one side and burn them. A piece of the root of this weed one inch long will start a new plant if the root remains in moist soil where it doesn't dry out. This first shallow plowing should be in the spring when the plants are just coming into full bloom. Then, after three or four weeks during which cultivation has been given, the ground should be plowed again more deeply to bring up the deeper roots. Three and even four plowings may be given before fall if the soil is thick with roots and the young plants continue to spring up from time to time. The whole success of the bare fallow method depends on never allowing the plants to go to seed or even to produce any growth at all above ground, in this way starving out the roots which have great vitality, but which must die if not supplied with food from growing leaves. Following this thoroughly cultivated bare fallow the land may be seeded heavily in the fall to two and one-half bushels of rye per acre which may be cut early in the spring for soiling purposes, or thoroughly disked and plowed under deeply as a green manure. The ground should then be kept thoroughly cultivated until seeding time, and then put in some row crop such as corn or potatoes and kept thoroughly cultivated throughout the summer, using a hand hoe where any plants appear. This method has proven successful in hundreds of cases but never unless thoroughly carried out. Of course, it is expensive because of the large amount of cultivation required, but where the thistle has obtained a good hold of a large area it is the only method that will do the work. Further, such a thoroughly cultivated fallow puts the ground in splendid shape for succeeding crops.

Seventh—Kerosene, sulphuric acid and carbolic acid have all been used, but while on individual plants they are fairly successful, they are very much more expensive than any of the other methods named, and in the case of acids dangerous to handle.

All the methods described above for the weed regarding which you make inquiry, have been thoroughly tried out and have proven successful scores of times, but unless they are carefully and thoroughly carried out as described none of them are of any value, and no farmer will succeed with them. Further the methods described above give you, I believe, everything known at the present time regarding the eradication of the weeds named. Of course, there are different kinds of thistles, but there is only one of them that is the perennial Canada thistle. All others, which are biennials, are easily exterminated. Farmers who are not sure of the identity of the thistle on their land should send in a specimen showing the leaves, roots and blossoms of the plant, for examination by the county agriculturist or O. A. C. agriculturists.
