Prohibition evidently has not prohibited in some of the "dry" counties, but the fines and jail sentences imposed recently indicate that it is making a desperate effort to prohibit. Perhaps before they get through with the court proceedings some of the liquor sellers will wish that prohibition had prohibited. —Oregonian.

The early frosts have done more damage than at first supposed. As the full extent is reached it is found that the loss extends to the corn that is being raised for the silo and the young nursery stock, many thousands of trees being killed that were still growing and thus diminishing the supply of available trees for this year's planting. —Oregon Agriculturist.

Owing to the fact that some who would like to get the first prize in the voting contest would rather have the rug than the fountain pen, we have changed the terms somewhat and will give the one getting the largest number of votes the first choice of the two articles. There will be only a little over three weeks to get votes in this contest and you will have to hurry. Somebody with very little exertion is going to get a prize that will last for many years and is good enough for the most fastidious.

Flower Better Than Fly Paper.

Mignonette a substitute for fly paper! Surely, of any remedy for any bad condition, that announcement has a delightful sound, says the New York Press. A woman living in the country asserts that in a room where pots of mignonette are set flies will not linger. "Instead of placing those annoying sticky sheets of paper about the room," says an experienced woman, "or undergoing exhaustive exercise of driving the pests out of the place through the window, the blessed plant just seems to blow them out on a wave of what you and I would call its fragrance."
