One of the school districts of Harney county, says the Times-Herald, contains 60 townships or 2160 square miles. Reduced to acres this amounts to 1,154,540 acres. Another district is rather oddly shaped, being 82 miles long by 22 miles wide. In length it would reach from the fair grounds at Portland to The Dalles. If the latter district had its school in the center a pupil living at the extreme end would only have a trifling trip of 41 miles each way, or 82 miles each day to travel.
