Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh, are two new teachers from Newberg who will be welcomed as teachers to this school.

Misses Kate and Grace Jones attended the Rose Festival this week and then went on to Waitsburg, Washington, to visit a sister.

Mr. Bridges sold his farm of forty acres south of town to a gentleman from Washington. The new owner is a gardener, and paid three thousand dollars for the land. Mr. Bridges will give possession next fall.

The public school gave an excellent program in the Opera House last Saturday evening. It was the same old story the house would not hold the people, and many were turned away. Twenty-five received diplomas from the eighth grade and six from the tenth grade.

Mr. Treanor has disposed of his home here to Mr. Addison who came from southern Oregon several months ago. Mr. Treanor and family will visit St. Paul, Minnesota, and northern part of Iowa, after which they will return and make the valley their future home.

It took three launches to bring the Salem base ball team up Sunday. After the game the three launches returned with the Salem people. The game was won by the Independence boys. The score being six to four in favor of Independence. The game was well attended.

CHRISTIAN COLLEGE ECHOES

How The Old Boys Beat The Senators.

Berkely, California, June 8, 1909.—Editor the Herald, Dear Sir: Your courtesy in sending me a recent issue of your interesting paper which contained mention of many of the old-time boys of Monmouth, including myself, deserves a special note of thanks. The article calls up pleasant memories of the long ago, when the fame of Monmouth depended not only on good scholarship, but also on the prowess of the athletes connected with Christian College. It will be remembered by the former students that our baseball team was particularly puissant. A series of games with Salem added glory to Monmouth's ball tossers. When the Salem lads arrived in a sort of tally-ho, drawn by four horses, all dressed up in smart uniforms, the Monmouth contingent disappeared for a time and finally emerged attired in the slouchiest garments they could find. They all appeared to need the service of the barber, and when they appeared on the ball field, (the plaza oposite the postoffice,) the Salem fellows were unable to control their laughter. "Long-haired Greeks," the visitors dubbed the home team, and the sobriquet stuck, as it was so appropriate that it could not be readily shaken off. The Salem boys had brought their best girls along to witness their victory, but sad to relate they were doomed to disappointment. Their pitcher was the prettiest little fellow you ever saw, and our rude batsmen swatted his delivery most unmercifully. He tried to hold a hot liner from Ed. Kramer's bat and that put him out of the game. They tried to break it up in a row, and changed the ball three times but our captain politely granted every demand as soon as it was made, and kept on piling up the runs until the end of the ninth inning, when the Senators, as they were called, because they hailed from the State Capital, jumped into their four-in-hand rig and drove away, the maddest and most chagrined lot of ball players one would see in a day's journey. The Salem men strengthened their ranks and tried it again, but were swept off their feet in a decisive battle that left Monmouth the undisputed champion of Polk and Marion counties.

A short time ago Lon Cleaver called to see me, and George McBride passed several months in Sacramento where I was employed three years ago. Quite a number of the old boys have hunted me up while in California, but your recent article gave me the first information in regard to many of the school mates who were with me in Monmouth. Ed. Whitson, who was a Monmouth boy in the early '60, deserves to be classed among the successful Polk county natives. Whitson is on the Federal bench in Washington, and is an able jurist. You omitted his name from your article, probably because he belonged to an earlier era.
