ters. He is only 17 years of age, but is one of the most promising of the younger musicians of the state. His many friends in Monmouth look forward to a great career for him after his three years course is finished and he returns to his native land.

Sunday morning C. G. Griffa called the Herald man's attention to a small blaze that he extinguished in the rear of the bank. Some one had thrown away the stub of a cigar and it had fallen among the leaves and sawdust near the bank woodshed and had it not been discovered just when it was, there would have been a smart blaze in a few minutes and no telling how much damage done. Care should be exercised in the matter of disposing of cigar stubs as well as everything else that has fire in it, at this time of year.
