President Taft is skeduled to be in Portland tomorrow, but unfortunately Monmouth is not of sufficient polttical significance to draw that winsome smile here. Most of us will have to be satisfied with a look at his picture.

Decorative Hatpins.

Decorative hatpins borrowed from the Japanese have become an important accessory of the millinery world. Indeed, some of the largest ones form occasionally for motor, sports and country wear almost the exclusive trimming to hats entirely hidden under a veil gracefully uraped by means of the strong ornamental pins. Next to the delicately fretted metal top of some hatpins in competition with those tipped with a toy duck in mock diamonds, relieved with minute green stones incrustated in the head, are the giant oval or circular tablelike heads as large as quarters and enhanced with Watteau scenes painted on a white china or celluloid foundation, offering a great contrast to large cameos, which can only be fittingly used with classical headgear of the Greek and Roman types.

In Moderate Size.
A charming example of the moderate size hat is shown in the cut. It is a simple little affair of leghorn trimmed with a rose colored plume and one large American Beauty rose and foliage. Its simplicity is restful.

The Princess Slip.
Luxurious women who are careful of the appearance of the waist line are wearing the princess slips habitually. Being all in one piece, they give one no fullness around the belt. A slip can be worn under a skirt and separate waist with very good results. The skirt sets better, while the separate waist fits more neatly around the belt line. A hint to the wise woman in this respect is sufficient. She will avail herself of the experience of the best dressmakers
