The Monmouth Hotel cared for a half dozen drummers who were here to supply the wants of our merchants this week.

J. M. Rhodes of Portland was in town Wednesday looking after his dog which had got lost somewhere while driving stock.

A. D. Elder who purchased the City meat Market took possession a few days ago and is dispensing meat to the public.

There was a small blaze in the fruit cannery here, this week, but it was discovered and put out before it got any start to speak of. There was little or no damage done.

The hop season is over and the hops have been cared for, so just take a glance at merchant Riggs adv. You will see that he has other goods that will interest you and to which he is calling your attention. He is trying to merit your patronage.

Monroe Mulkey had his house moved this week, which stands next the one he resides in near the college, moving it northward giving more space between the buildings. Andy Wilson of Independence did the work.

Zook the Painter, will hang your paper.

L. W. Stitcheney of Corvallis had business here Tuesday.

H. Heitsmith of Eugene was a Monmouth visitor this week.

Zook, the paper hanger will do your painting.
