The West Indies have again been swept by a destructive storm which has left a trail of death and destruction in its wake. Kingston, Jamaica received a heavy and destructive downpour amounting to 48 inches of rain in less than that number of hours. It is only about two years since that city was visited by the destructive earthquake in which some 1700 persons lost their lives.

We passed G. A. Peterson's real estate office Wednesday and found A. B. Westfall busily engaged hanging paper, but not so busy however but that he took time to mention that he had been reading of a Portland man having green beans for dinner, and he wanted to remark that Portland was not ahead of Polk in that respect. As he had not only had green beans during the past week but that he had plucked enough red raspberries from the vine with which Mrs. Westfall had made a pie.
