John Andre, a resident of Northern Michigan, was a visitor to Monmouth this week. He is looking for a location, but having grown sons who want employment, he is looking after a manufacturing locality. He gave out the information that there are hundreds of people coming to Oregon from Northern Michigan in order to escape the frigid winter weather of that clime. He is much in love with the Willamette valley and says that it is the best place he has ever seen.

Many Entries for Horse Show.

Salem, Or., April 5.—President Chas. L. Dick, of the Salem Horse Show Association announced today that they were fairly swamped with entries for horses to be sold during the great sale which will be conducted on the second day of the Horse Show. This is a new feature for the Horse Show Day in Oregon, and was made possible by holding a two day's show, and the management now feel certain that it will be the biggest success of the kind ever attempted.

Buyers and sellers will be brought together from all parts of the state. The main sale will be public auction, where all horses that are listed for that purpose will be sold, and for this service the horse owners are to be charged 5 per cent of the selling price, but those people who do not care to put their horses up at auction have the privilege of listing them for private sale. These horses will be listed in the catalogue and in the programs with the announcement at what barn they can be found.

For Sale

Olden Time "Raiment."

In early Bible days richly embroidered raiment was enumerated with the gold, silver and other valuable property of a rich man. In that primitive age Dame Fashion was not the fickle goddess she is at present, and the "raiment" so frequently mentioned in the Holy Scriptures descended from father to son as a valuable part of the inheritance. Raiment was often sent, with gold and gems, as a present to dignitaries. It took not months, but years, to ornament some of these garments, and the gold thread so lavishly used in embroidering them was real gold. Moses describes the process of making the gold thread that was used in ornamenting the tabernacle. The habit of making presents of rare needlework is still common among eastern nations that changed their customs so slowly.

Weeping Trees.

The phenomenon of "weeping trees"—that is, of trees shedding drops of liquid—is ascribed by Dr. Sharp in the Cambridge Natural History to the influence of plant bugs. The familiar frog hopper which produces the so called cuckoo spit on so many of our plants belongs to this family of insects. A note in the London Field calls attention to some interesting observations on this subject made by Dr. Annandale and contributed by him to the records of the Indian museum. Dr. Annandale while collecting insects in western Bengal felt what he thought was rain from a clear sky through the foliage of a tree. On investigation he found that it fell from the leaves and was due to a species of plant bug present in enormous numbers.

Leaves It to Her Judgment.

"Am I the first girl you ever kissed?" asks the fair young thing from the refuge of his shoulder.

"Well," he replies, "after the way my arm just naturally slipped around your waist as you unconsciously leaned toward me and my fingers lifted your chin as you unconsciously tilted your head and I bent forward where your lips were waiting and didn't get the kiss either on your nose or your chin, but where it belonged—after all that, and with the knowledge of the subject which you have displayed, I shall say nothing, except that I leave the question to your own judgment."—Life.
