Herman Wunder of Monmouth Heights gave the Herald office a social call Wednesday. Mr. Wunder lives on a small farm some three miles west of town and wanted to set us right on the amount of oats he was reported to have received, which was far short of a carload, being some where near three hundred pounds. Mr. Wunder being alive to the fact that it pays to get new varieties of cereals as well as other seeds, does some experimenting and hence his importation of oats. In past years he as well as others has found that it pays well to make such investments.
