Miss Ethel Newman gave Falls City a visit Sunday remaining over to take in the celebration. Miss Ethel is Monmouth's very efficient postal clerk and hence a trailer followed her next day.

Herman Wunder, from Monmouth Heights, was in town one day this week, having business which called him this way. He says that those oats, of which we made mention some time ago, are growing all right.

Mrs. Sarah Davis was among those who went to Falls City to celebrate, but as she started early, got there late, and missed the forenoon exercises, she was not over-joyed with the occasion.

Landlord Hampton's friends are having some fun this week at Mr. Hampton's expense. He has been wanting to sell his business for some time, and Mrs. Johnson, his daughter, who had charge while he and wife were at Pendleton, offered him his price for the business, but when the opportunity to sell confronted him he backed down—he says he never takes water except when he can't help it.

At a late hour dainty refreshments of orange sherbet and wafers were served. Prizes Awarded for Sweet Pea Culture

Our attention was called to the display of sweet pea bloom in the window of the Perkins Pharmacy Tuesday in passing that place, the window having been stocked with profusion of bouquets of the flowering pea, which was the result of a contest brought about by an offer of prizes for the best flowers raised from seeds purchased at the Pharmacy, those entering the contest to be under sixteen years of age.

The award which was made Tuesday afternoon was five dollars to be divided into three prizes, the judges being Mesdames M. Campbell, Agnes Daily of Monmouth, and Miss Ethel Rigdon of Salem, and prize winners were Ruby Lorence, $2.50; Hazel Burcell, $1.50, and Clem McKinney, $1.

The young misses all had raised beautiful flowers, but coupled with the effort was the patriotic design of the first prize winner having alternated her flower bed with red, white and blue varieties.

After the awards were made the judges were treated to soda water by the enterprising proprietor of the Pharmacy.

Offers of this nature are calculated to stimulate the energies and desires of young persons in the culture of plants and their love for the perfect and beautiful.
