It isn't often that old cabbage stalks produce a second head the succeeding year, but in this country of prolific and abnormal yields nothing is surprising. A last years plant in H. T. Faulconer's garden produced a large flat Duch head that was duly cut off and used. This year the old stock kept on growing and produced a larg 10 1-4 pound head, and from appearances, if it had been left in the ground, would have produced a third head next year.—Sheridan Sun.

A Newfangled Proposition

Spokane is certainly a live burg. Not satisfied with being the scene of the start of the Ballinger-Pinchot fight; with having originated the national apple show; with having humbled the transcontinental railroads and defeated the coast cities before the interstate commerce commission, enterprising citizens of Spokane are backing a move to erect a monument to Adam and Eve. It is a scheme that was once proposed by Mark Twain and the Spokaneites feel called upon to make the dream, or the jest come true. Doubtless they will soon be busy with a campaign for the purpose of showing that the Spokane valley is the modern garden of Eden, if not the original vale, and so is the logical place for the monument to the fabled first couple. What will they do next.—East Oregonian.

Only One Message.

The lady of the house where they use a "party line" told the new maid to repeat to her any message. Then the lady went shopping. When she returned she summoned the maid.

"Did you receive any message for me, Jane?" she inquired.

"Only one, ma'am. I thought I heard th' bell ring, ma'am, an' I took down th' receiver, ma'am, an' just then a voice said, 'Listening again, are you, you old snoop?'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Old Mill.

Tourist in Holland I suppose, my good man, that mill has ground out your living for a good many years? Gentleman of Marken—Bless you, no! The old shack hasn't run for twenty years. I make a better living renting it as a model to American artists.—Judge.
