THEIR WAY'S SEEM PARTED

For years and years a noted pair,
By friendship bound together,
Stood side by side in public life
In calm or stormy weather.
The one stood at the nation's head,
The other, sure, was ready,
When time to act, was come, he said,
"I want the seat of Teddy."
He sought, obtained, and took the oath,
Which made him chief commander,
While former friend, with rod and gun,
Sailed off for sports much grander
Than those which Rocky's slopes afford,
And there content he sported,
While Billy lured away the love
Of those whom Roosevelt courted.
The hunt is o'er, the chief returns
Amid a blaze of glory,
Alas! discordant to his ears
Falls notes of treason's story.
For weeks and weeks, the silent voice,
Great cause for wonder started,
But now the cause is clear and plain,
Ted's ways and Bill's have parted.

Oregon just now must be developing something new in the way of spontaneous editorial sameness, as we have read the same editorial in several of our exchanges, during the past two weeks, and as there was no credit, we concluded that each claimed it as individual effort. We know there are bureaus that furnish political editorials and send them out for editors who have no conscientious scruples in laying claim to them as their own effort, and as the particular one we have in mind is calculated to further the interests of the whiskey traffic we conclude that the liquor interests are furnishing editorial matter for those who will use it.

Colonel E. Hofer is still automobubbling after the gubernatorial nomination. He is leaving a scent of gasoline as he passes through the Southern part of Oregon, but we fear he is too heavily covered with a "wet" blanket to make an up-to-date race.

To Herald Subscribers

There are a number of HERALD subscribers who are almost one year in arrears with their subscription. We are completing the work of sending out statements to those in arrears, and will esteem it a great favor if they will respond promptly.

The Postoffice department has ruled that publishers may not send a paper to a subscriber longer than one year if not paid for, so if the HERALD ceases its visits subscribers will know the cause.

The Stupendous in Destruction

On each of the new battleships authorized by Congress, there are to be ten 14-inch guns. What these monsters are capable of doing is beyond ordinary grasp. Each gun will cost about $85,000, and yet is good for a life of only 70 discharges under battle conditions. Each projectile launched will weigh 1400 pounds, being a veritable torpedo of explosives. Muzzle velocity will be 2600 feet a second, or nearly a half mile. Muzzle energy will be equivalent to the force one railway engine and five cars, weigh 580 tons, would exert when traveling 60 miles an hour, if suddenly brought up against a solid obstruction. At five miles this projectile will penetrate Harveyized steel armor of 14 inches thickness. In one hour of constant fighting, these ten guns would require ammunition worth $2,520,000.

For many reasons, the naval battle of the future will have to be a speedy affair. Each of these guns can fire at the rate of three shots a minute. With a life of but seventy shots, the monster would have to do its terrible execution and be ready for the scrap heap after less than an hour of gruelling combat. Anything of a protracted nature is out of the question when shooting begins. One of these projectiles, landed amidship, would rip things up in such manner that the battleship getting the shot must necessarily feel a disorganization amongst its vitals.

Naval war is becoming a scientific contest in developing control of high explosives. Every inch added to the diameter of big guns relegates hundreds of millions of dollars worth of naval craft. These two battleships which Congress has authorized are far superior as fighting machines to Admiral Sampson's entire fleet in the Spanish-American War.

DIRECTORS OF TWO EXPOSITIONS MEET

Two Exposition Cities to Unite Against Common Foe in New Orleans

San Diego has formally enlisted in the ranks of the San Francisco 1915 supporters, and has pledged her entire influence to secure Federal recognition of San Francisco as the official site for the Panama Exposition in 1915. Headed by D. C. Collier, Director General of the San Diego Fair, a delegation from San Diego visited San Francisco, where they were the guests of the Directors of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, at a luncheon at the Fairmont Hotel. The San Diego delegation came North with the good news that their city had just bonded itself for $1,000,000 to improve the 1400-acre City Park, and to erect permanent buildings which will be for the use of the San Diego Exposition. R. B. Hale, acting President of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, presided, and Senator Stone of Missouri, and Messrs Frank L. Brown, Chas. C. Moore, D. C. Collier, J. D. Spreckels, Wm. Kettner, and J. W. Sefton Jr., were the speakers. Governor Gillett, Mayor McCarthy, Gavin McNab and many prominent San Franciscans were among those present. D. C. Collier, speaking for San Diego said, "We are here to learn how we may best assist San Francisco's efforts to attain a victory at Washington this winter."

Black Rock Threatened

A fire in the timber east of Black Rock caused some damage last Friday. H. Brooks, who lives a short distance east of the town was compelled to vacate his tent in a hurry. He has moved into Black Rock.

Constant watchfulness has been necessary in order to keep the fire from escaping control. The main effort has been to prevent the fire from catching in the heaps of driftwood which have accumulated in the creek and along the banks. — Observer.

FOR MEN and YOUNG MEN

The importance of correct dress as a business asset is to often overlooked. It's not the cost that counts—it's the effect. No matter how expensive, if your clothing has not the style which well dressed, prosperous men insist upon, it might as well be the cheapest. We carry the famous

The Ostrich.

That ostriches hide their heads in the sand and think that their bodies are thereby hidden seems to be pure myth, says the London Times. Old birds on the nest and young birds when seeking to evade notice squat close to the ground and stretch their necks out flat on the sand. In the case of the young, which harmonizes as perfectly with their sandy surroundings as young ringed plover do with the stones on a beach, the ruse is said to render them almost invisible, and on the wide expanses of the desert it is evident that the upright neck of a sitting bird would render it unnecessarily conspicuous to a marauding enemy. But there is no more ground for accusing the ostrich of "self illusion" than there is for bringing the same charge against the partridge chick, which by merely sitting still among the grass practically disappears from sight.
