A Grande Ronde Indian was ground and mangled under an electric car at Salem last Friday night past positive recognition. It appears that the Indian tried to get off at a crossing but was too late and in his effort to leave the car fell between the cars. He is supposed to have been a brother of Teabo, the baseball pitcher.

George Niggli presented the Herald office yesterday with a choice lot of Italian prunes. Mr. Niggli has a young orchard, off which he picked about 150 bushels this season. They average 13 to the pound and when the largest are chosen 10 prunes weigh over a pound. He intends setting out more trees this fall.

The After Math

Buffalo Bill drew rather heavily on Monmouth for an audience at Salem, Wednesday, and among the heavy-weights that answered to the call were Messrs Robert Steel, George A. Muscott, E. C. Ecker and R. M. Smith.

Buffalo Bill has been along time on the road and has learned how to put out enticing notices; his name has a big bunch of load-stone or drawing power, so he attracts, but there comes an after consideration, when securely seated in the big tent, with all the expectancy engendered by flashy showbills, and the reality before you, there comes a reaction and the individual begins to compare the real with the expected, and ask himself whether he is getting the worth of his money and effort in coming. This seems to have been the condition of one or two, and perhaps all of the quartette named, but one in particular seemed depressed until he looked around and recognized that there were others, and then he soothed his mind with the thought, "There is a bunch of us."

A phrase, learned in youth, comes to the mind to express conditions: "Veni vidi vici." I came, I saw, I conquered, but the expression does not fit the occasion, it needs doctoring, hence, it is necessary to change to "I went, I saw, I got stung."

Candidate's Announcement

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the nomination of Representative, subject to the will of the Democratic Party at the Primaries, September 24, 1910.

We Are Making

an interesting display of "Better" shoes just now, a lot of new members of the "Star Brand" having arrived. We take pleasure in presenting their pictures, and invite you to come and be introduced. They are indeed a charming lot, the cream of shoe society, in fact, and you should meet them.

Impossible to find more shoe elegance, comfort or endurance anywhere. This home of "Stars" is growing more popular daily. It is becoming known far and wide, and our circle of customers is rapidly broadening. The "Star Brand" shoe is certainly a magnet; it beats the world at making friends.

May we not add your name to our list of customers when in need of shoes?

What Puzzled Louis.

Louis Philippe was a wit. What he specially excelled in was the clenching of an argument, such as, for instance, his final remark on the death of Talleyrand. He had paid him a visit the day before. When the news of the prince's death was brought to him he said: "Are you sure he is dead?" "Very sure, sire," was the answer. "Why, did not your majesty himself notice yesterday that he was dying?"

"I did, but there is no judging from appearances with Talleyrand, and I have been asking myself for the last four and twenty hours what interest he could possibly have in departing at this particular moment."
