P. H. Johnson was a visitor at Salem, Friday.

Zook the Painter, will hang your paper for you.

Miss Kathryn Hughes visited friends in Dallas last Saturday returning home next day.

L. D. Brown, Attorney-at-law, Notary Public, Abstractor, Dallas, Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Robertson gave their son, who lives at Sheridan a week's visit returning Sunday, having spent an enjoyable week.

P. E. Johnson took a look around Jefferson last Thursday to see what he could find, having gone there to look at a piece of property but failed to find what he cared to possess.

Mrs. C. L. Marks and daughter, Miss Cora Brown, were trading in town Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Marks have moved from Rickreall and are now living on the Luckiamute near Airlie.

Messrs. J. S. Scheible and son Guy, John H. Houk and the Herald editor, gave Salem a visit last Friday having gone over to have a look around the city, and by the way Salem is one of Oregon pretty cities.

In making a mention of Arthur McCarthy in last issue we got the wrong name for the restaurant in which he is employed as he is working in the Baltimore, instead of the one named last week.

John H. Houk and wife and children who arrived here last week from Columbus, Indiana, left, Monday, for Portland where Mr. Houk hopes to find employment. If he does not succeed there he will go to Spokane where he has been offered a position.

Prosperous Oregon

The apple crop of Oregon for 1910 is estimated to be 1609 carloads or approximately 1,000,000 boxes. The value of the crop is $2,000,000. Oregon has 63 per cent of a full crop.

Oregon orchards yielded prunes this year estimated at 15,000,000 pounds. Quantity and quality are superior to the 1909 crop. Prunes will bring the state about $1,250,000 this season.

The peach crop has been the largest in the history of the state. Grapes of the Rogue River Valley, the Willamette Valley, the Dallas and Eastern Oregon are excellent in quality and appearance, while the yield is large.

The largest fruit and vegetable evaporator in the United States is located at Dayton, Yamhill County.

The Willamette Valley produced 100,000 bales of first grade hops this season, as compared with a yield of 82,000 bales last season.

Oregon's cranberry harvest has been heavy. Four hundred bushels an acre, with a clear profit of $1 a bushel, is not an unusual yield for Western Oregon marshes.

An industrial bureau has been established by the Portland Commercial Club, with R. W. Raymond at its head. The new adjunct to the club work will aid in the establishment in the states at large and at Portland.

During the past five years, statistics show that Oregon has increased 60 per cent in manufacturing.

It is expected that 20,000 wool-growers will visit Portland during January next, when the National Association of Wool Growers will hold its annual convention in this city.

Oregon's public lands comprise 18,225,694 acres. Eastern Oregon has 500,000 acres of school land. Because of attractive colonist rates in effect this Fall, the immigration to Oregon has been greater than ever before in a like period.

The total value of agricultural products of the state for the current season is given at $115,000,000.

Oregon harvested 17,000,000 bushels of wheat this season, 11,000,000 bushels of oats, 6,000,000 bushels of potatoes, 2,000,000 pounds of wool and 100,000 bales of hops.

Portland building statistics show a decided increase. September, 1910, 606 permits, value $1,391,260; September, 1909, 509 permits, value $1,288,300.

Oregon banks have increased in number since 1909 from 204 to 232. Total deposits for September this year were $142,670,514, an increase over 1909 of $20,698,666. The surplus this year is $4,712,506. Portland banks show an increase of $9,712,506 over the same period of last year.

Lane County has 38 lumber mills with an annual cut of 200,000,000 feet.

A Vicarious Remedy.

A man went into a druggist's and asked for something to cure a headache. The druggist held a bottle of hartshorn to his nose, and he was nearly overpowered by its pungency. As soon as he recovered he began to rail at the druggist and threatened to punch his head.

"But didn't it ease your headache?" asked the apothecary. "Ease my headache!" gasped the man. "I haven't got any headache. It's my wife that's got the headache."

A Stork's Nest.

An old stork's nest built on the roof of the Cathedral of Colmar, in northern France, became dislodged and threatened to fall into the street. It measured five feet across, and it was four feet high. It weighed 1,500 pounds and was such a compact mass that to destroy it picks had to be used. In the nest were found seventeen stockings, five fur caps, the sleeve of a silk blouse, a large piece of leather and four metal buttons.
