Organization of the Senior Class of the Oregon Normal.

Miss Lelia Scott, of Plainview, president; Miss Esther Copeland, of Toledo, vice-president; Miss Ines Stark, of Eugene, secretary; Miss Mabel Ellis, of Independence, treasurer; Miss Esther B. Ryan, of Salem, class editor.

The class, as the officers indicate, represent almost as many counties as there are members, showing that the demand for special training in the teaching profession is state-wide.

Warranted to Wear.

"Now, lookee 'ere," said the farmer to the manager of the cloth factory, planking down a big parcel of wool; "th' last cloth you made for me was so thin that I hardly knew when I'd got on a coat or not. So make this oop thicker, my lad."

The manager nodded. Business was bad. He couldn't afford to lose old customers, so he put his best work into the job.

"Well, is the cloth stiff enough this time?" he asked a day or two afterward.

"Stiff enough? You couldn't break it wi' a battleram!" exclaimed the farmer. "Why, my lad, it be bullet proof! Old girl and me, we tried to bend it, but 'tweren't no good. But that be all right now," he added, "I've just been to th' carpenter, and he's goin' to put hinges on knees and elbows!"—Answers.
