Zook, the paper hanger will do your painting.

Miss Leto Wolverton visited Mrs. Orr at Rickreall Tuesday.

J. A. Wield, of Jefferson, was here yesterday looking for a location.

D. M. Hampton returned home yesterday from his trip to Eastern Oregon.

Strickler & Murdock have done a big business during their sale two love—ahem—between two opinions to have a metre at hand which would weigh, register and record the varied and various sensations so accurately that one could not fail to recognize where the preponderance of feeling and sentiment lay. Choosing would then be relieved of that woeful burden of uncertainty which we so often experience.

I wish to submit the foregoing embryonic, unhatched inventions to the two youthful members of our "Monmouth Electric Firm." Take them up, and elaborate as much as you have time for, in the intervals of perfecting that "Glider."

How the inventions of Earth prevail for a perfect being! That Glider—though it went smash when handled by an outsider, an un-initiate without the requisite skill—will still, in the experienced hands of those two supermen, be amply competent to bring the youthful Firm of Ostrom & Powell down, singly or collectively, on their venture-me young heads. And this one sea is the small Kernel in this nut-breaking nut—Don't "Glide" with young supermen, and so on far.

Lieutenant Chester R. Strong was home for Halloween from Hills Military Academy of Portland. He was accompanied by his friend, Major Linn Biglow, of Idaho. They were attired in their college uniforms and wore the customary sword. They returned yesterday to Portland.

Dispose of their Long Mohair

Some time ago we shipped our long mohair to Messrs. Brown and Adams, agents for the National Mohair Association, and have just received word from them that they had sold this lot of hair to Mr. L. Levussove, of New York, for $4.00 per pound. This lot was almost two years' growth and ran in length from 12 inches to 24 inches. We consider this to be a very good price for such hair, as the change in fashions has had a tendency to lower the price of long hair and wool. There were 270 pounds in the lot, most of it running from 15 to 20 inches in length. The Angora goat business is beginning to look up right along now. Breeders are buying good bucks and improving their flocks. As long as we get a fairly good price for our mohair, goat raisers are willing to spend money in building up their flocks. Our sales up to date have been very good, but we still have a fine lot of bucks on hand that we are offering at a very reasonable price we like the looks of your Angora Journal, as it is full of the general goat man's troubles and trials and one can learn much in this way that otherwise would take him years of experience to learn.
