The gap in the concrete walk, between Main and Jackson streets, on the West side of Broad street was closed up this week making a nice stretch of permanent walk. The new order of walk is beginning to show up at several places to good advantage.

Mrs. John Moreland returned home, Thursday, of last week, from a visit to her daughter, near Heppner. She found the East Oregonians inclined to disparage this part of the state, hence, was much on the defensive while there. She was glad to get back to Polk County, performing this part of the state very decidedly to the Eastern part.

Public Library

The function of a public library in a college town as a social center was delightfully instanced last Sunday afternoon at the Monmouth public library with the initial number of a short series of hours to be devoted to reading aloud.

Miss Fridt, as reader, interested some thirty eager listeners and Miss Brenton assisted by Misses Clark and Peery, acted as hostess, with President and Mrs. Ackerman, and Mrs. Force of the Public library Board as guests of honor. After the reading, President Ackerman held all spell bound with his humorous stories.

Next Sunday, assisted by Misses Hyde and Ellis, Miss Harlan will be hostess, Miss Olive Louise Davis, reader, and Mr. J. B. V. Butler, President of the Public Library Board, and Mrs. Butler the guests of honor. The reading is from three to four.

After school Wednesday afternoon, Miss Shearer, accompanied by the pupils of the first and second grades, visited the public library to make the acquaintance of Mrs. Ryan, assistant acting-librarian. Miss Parrott delighted the children with her vivid, dramatic story-telling, and the little people no less delighted the grown-ups with their contributions to story hour.

What Was It?

There was some talk on the streets here, Tuesday morning, of someone having fired two shots from a rifle through two of the passenger coaches as the train was entering Dallas Monday evening, and that our townsman, Ira C. Powell, was in one of the cars shot into.

We called on Mr. Powell and got the following account of the incident:

There was some missile fired against the window of the car in which he was riding, which broke a small round hole in the window glass and the same was true of the car in front, but no gun report was heard, the incident taking place some distance outside the city. Mr. Powell having called up Sheriff Grant the next morning learned that through investigation they had discovered that no bullets had entered either car and the opinion was given that the work was evidently that of some boys trying their skill with sling-shots.

Charles Scoville is circulating a petition asking that the post master general restore the daily mail route between this city and Salem, which was cut down to a tri-weekly several months ago. Everybody wants it—hence the petition has been generally signed. The route is an important one to the people of this section and they wish to see it kept up and made as efficient as possible.—Independence Enterprise.
