Alex Dunsmore, of Garden Home, registered at Hotel Monmouth Sunday.

P. E. Chase left Sunday for Eastern Oregon, having business which called him to the Bend country.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Remington will go to Saratoga Springs, New York, starting some time next week. Mr. Remington has a sister living there, who has been sick for some time, whom he is going to visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Emery and son, Donald, from Hood River, arrived here Tuesday on a visit to Mrs. Emery's parents, Rev. Wood and wife. Mr. Emery returned home yesterday and his wife and child will remain for awhile.

There will be a big picnic at Marion Square, Salem, July 1, 2 and 3, under the auspices of the Socialist party. Addresses on the political situation by G. W. Ellis, of Portland, on July 1, Dr. Chapman, ex-president O. S. U., on July 2, and Rev. Albert Ehrgott, of Portland, on July 3, with local speakers of all political parties. Everybody invited.

Miss Margaret McCoskey, a graduate of McMinnville, has been elected to the position of assistant teacher in the High School, which completes the corps of instructors for the High School. Also Miss Todd, from the East, has been chosen by the Normal as a critic teacher, and will have charge of the 5th and 6th grades in place of Miss Olive Davis who goes to San Jose state Normal for next year.

R. T. Boothby, of Carlton, was the guest of his brother, G. T. Boothby, Wednesday night, having had business which called him to Independence.

ANATOMY OF AN OYSTER.

The Bivalve's Organs Numerous and Its Heart Quite Humanlike.

Every oyster has a mouth, a heart, a liver, a stomach, besides many curiously devised little intestines and other organs—necessary organs, such as would be handy to a living, moving, intelligent creature. The mouth is at the end of the shell, near the hinge and adjoining the toothed portion of the oyster's pearly covering. This tiny little apology of a mouth is oval in shape, and, although hardly visible to one unused to making such anatomical examinations, it can be easily discovered by gently pushing a bodkin or a piece of blunt, smooth wire along the surface of the locality mentioned.

When the mouth is at last located you can thrust your instrument through between the delicate lips and a considerable distance toward the stomach without causing the oyster the least pain whatever. From this mouth there is of course a miniature canal leading to the stomach. Food passes from this canal to the stomach and from the latter organ into the intestines just as readily as though the little bivalve were as large as an elephant or a rhinoceros.

Remove the shell (this operation is rather rough on the oyster, but can be done in a comparatively painless manner by an expert), and you will see the crescent, which lies just over the so called oyster heart. This half moon space is the oyster's pericardium. Within is the true heart, the pulsations of which can be readily seen without the aid of a glass. The heart is very humanlike, made of two parts, one of which receives the blood from the gills through a network of real blood vessels; the other portion contracts and drives the blood out through the body. The other organs of an oyster's anatomy are all in their proper places and perform their several functions.

Suicide At Suver.

Word reached here Tuesday of the suicide of Albert J. Paul but we have been unable to learn much of the facts.

It appears from what has come out that his wife had sued him for absolute divorce and that his domestic relations may have had something to do with his rash act.
