

With the Churches

Baptist Church.

By J. K. P. CARSON

The pastor being sick, Prof. Coe, principal of the Commercial department of McMinnville college, supplied, preaching two inspiring discourses. The text for the morning was: "What is this in thine hand?" Eph. 4: 2. Moses, when fleeing from Egypt, had been in training as he supposed for life's work, and that the forty years so spent had thoroughly prepared him for his mission, but it took forty years more in the Midian wilderness to make him the man that God could use. He needed the hard knocks of the school of experience to remove his dependence on self. He now doubted his ability to do the work God would have him do. He was familiar with his staff (shepherd's crook) which he had in his hand. It should be the symbol of God's power. It would become a serpent in the presence of Pharaoh, Moses would lift it up and the plagues would come. The rod was stretched forth and the sea divided. When David met Goliath he used his shepherd's sling; he was familiar with that. Carry's business was to preach the gospel, but he cobbled shoes to pay expenses. The great lesson of the sermon was that if we would be successful we must use the thing or ability we have. It is the little things of life as well as the great properly used that tells.

The evening subject was "The Mountain Peaks of Divine History." The speaker led his audience to see "the awful agony," the perfidy of Judas, Pilate, the judge, taking council of the enemies of Christ and condemning without evidence, the deep anguish of the disciples; but Jesus arose and ascended on high, the highest peak; Christ is coming again. The righteous will be taken to the Lord, meet him in the air. A valley beyond, in which the devil will be turned loose, have full control for a season—then the appeal, fly to Christ for refuge—great themes and great sermons.

We hope the pastor will be able to be with us next Sunday. Services at the usual hours.

The choir added very much to the effectiveness of the services.

That certainly was a happy bunch that met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mack last Friday night. That Golden Rule Bible class certainly are great entertainers. The spacious parlors were comfortably full, and so were the guests after partaking of that delightful cake and ice cream. Now, ladies, when you wish to repeat the occasion, "Barkis is willin'." The best thing of the evening was the delightful spirit which made every one feel that he was indeed welcome.

The church last Sunday voted to petition President Wilson that he use the good offices of the U. S. to bring about arbitration treaties with other nations so the dangers of war may be reduced to a minimum. This is as it should be. Christ is the Prince of Peace. His people should be like him.

Remember that Brotherhood meeting this Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. Every boy and man, old and young, is invited to come and bring others with him. Gym talks will be the feature of the evening and they will be gems of wit and wisdom.

Mission study class this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Regular services Sunday.

The building question should be definitely settled Sunday at the close of the morning service. Every member should be present if possible.

We gladly welcome Bro. Gueffroy for another year and we hope longer. We wish him much joy in his work.

Conference is a thing of the past, and with it much anxiety has passed away, for speculations and unrevealed desires were manifold. Appointments and disappointments go together, but I am not to preach a sermon through the columns of our excellent city paper, however much we appreciate the good will of its editor in giving us the space, and so we invite you to come and hear the same preacher, anew, next Sunday.

Sunday School at 10 o'clock.

Preaching services at 11 and 8 o'clock. Young People's meeting at 7 o'clock.

We earnestly invite all our members to be present the first Sunday in the Conference year, also those who have worshipped with us and those who expect to.

Let us have a good beginning for a warm welcome awaits you all.

Live Stock at the 1915 Exposition.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14.—D. O. Lively, Chief of the Department of Live Stock of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, announced that plans were being perfected which will insure a display of live stock during the entire term of the Exposition.

Students of Exposition attendance authoritatively state that practically one hundred per cent of the people who enter the gates are interested in some form of animal life because of the educational opportunities afforded.

There will be displays of horses, cattle, sheep, swine, goats, poultry, pigeons and pet stock, from the beginning to the close of the Exposition.

Heretofore at World's Fairs the live stock shows have been confined to competitions between numbers which took place usually in October and November.

Similar competitions will be held at San Francisco in which $175,000 will be awarded in prizes. From assurances already received there will be interest in these competitions from practically all over the world.

The English breeders are making preparations to show sheep, swine, beef and dairy cattle. There will also be exhibits from Denmark, Holland and Sweden. New Zealand and Australia will show beef cattle and sheep. Horses will be shown from Australia and the Argentine, France, Belgium and England.

An advisory committee has been appointed from every state in the Union. In addition to the largest poultry show that has ever been held in the world, three will be new specimens that have never been seen in this country. Provisions are being made to secure specimens of the long tailed chickens from Japan, which attain a plumage of twenty feet.

The Automobile and Good Roads.

Of all the agencies that are working for good roads, there is none so powerful, or none that offers as good a prospect of ultimate success as the automobile.

Many of the other good roads enthusiasts are prone to limit their activities to standing upon a handsomely decorated platform and exhorting large numbers of their fellows to go out and do something, but the automobilist recognizes the fact that much work must be done and large amounts of money expended before good roads will become a reality. Since rough, well high impassable roads interfere with the use of his car and prevent him from getting his money's worth out of it, he is willing to give up both time and money.

With horse drawn vehicles bad roads are a nuisance, but one that can be endured. This is not true of the automobile. Good roads are essential both to the comfort and the pocket book of the car owner. Riding over a long succession of ruts and bumps cannot, even by the widest stretch of the imagination, be regarded as a pleasure. Every person who tries it immediately becomes a good roads enthusiast.

Automobile owners are no longer confined to a single class. Cars are owned almost as extensively in the country and country towns as in the cities. Thus the protests from automobile men against bad roads and their efforts to get better ones are representative of all interests.

The automobile fills a want that is felt by everyone alike and the number of cars in use is increasing every year. This means that the demand for good roads is going to grow steadily. When enough people really want good roads—want them so badly that they are willing to work for them and spend money for them—we will get them. Increasing use of the automobile will hasten that time.—Eugene Register.

Chickens Find Gold in Lost River Sands.

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., May 8.—During the past few weeks two farmers living along Lost River, south of this city, found small gold nuggets in the crops of chickens. A few years ago Ex-County Judge J. B. Griffith secured a number of small nuggets from turkeys raised in the same vicinity. It is believed by many that there is gold in paying quantities, and that diligent prospecting will result in rich discoveries.
