

With the Churches

Evangelical Church.

By W. A. GUEFFROY

The writer spent the greater part of last week in Portland, attending the Second World's Christian Citizenship Conference. It was a great meeting, with representatives from nearly all parts of the world. The weather was ideal, the place of meeting, Multnomah Field, splendidly arranged and the crowds immense. Possibly never less in actual attendance than ten thousand and from that up to twenty-five thousand.

On the Fourth of July about ten thousand Sunday School scholars, headed by Portland's Mayor, marched through the main street of the city singing religious songs and the national hymn. Such a sight Portland had never seen and all along the line of the march the streets were thronged with people and many joined in the singing. The Sunday School scholars were IT on this occasion, for all the seats in the stadium were reserved for them and the writer was one among the thousands who had to stand back by order of the police. One thing was needed, the Bible, and whosoever had that in his hand or under the arm was permitted to walk right through the ranks of the police without any interference. Many a boy and girl wished that they were Sunday School scholars on the occasion.

The question was asked here and there: What does it all mean and what is it to represent? And the answer comes back that it means the revolution of the city life of Portland. A commission form of government, with a mayor who is both a christian and a teacher in the Sunday School and who is supported by the good people of Portland, must needs bring about a change in the municipal affairs of that and of any other city. Mark the phrase, ye readers of the HERALD, "A Christian Mayor."

We are pleased to know that the people of Monmouth were more than satisfied with the supply in the pulpit last Sunday. He will be with us again in one week, July the 20, and may we even now say, I'll be there.

SERVICES FOR SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1913

Sunday School at 10 o'clock; preaching services at 11 and 8 o'clock; Y. P. A. at 7 o'clock. The writer was elected to represent our young people's society at the Conference in Portland and he will give a brief report this Sunday evening.

Reception of members in connection with the morning services.

These meetings are for the public and we invite you to come. Students are especially invited.

Baptist Church.

By G. A. POLLARD

Another splendid day marked the second Sunday of the Summer school time. At the present rate of increase in our congregations we will soon have our seats filled, for another record was broken Sunday.

We would be glad to have you make this your church home while you are in Monmouth, if you do not live here, and in any case you will find a most cordial welcome awaiting you at all of our services.

Wednesday evening, at 8:00, is the prayer meeting. Come and discuss with us the book of Matthew—its purpose, message, peculiarities and date of writing.

The themes for next Sunday are as follows: Morning, "Four Men Under One Hat"; evening, "The People's Verdict."

School Children's Industrial Work

Among the first things taken up by Superintendent J. A. Churchill was the work done in the industrial department. In order to get a line on what is being done in the different counties, Mr. Churchill called a meeting of the county superintendents who were in session last week at the State House in the capacity of the State Board of Examiners. Each superintendent reported an increasing interest in the movement and in most all cases the local exhibits bid fair to be larger and better than last year.

The State Fair board was anxious to ascertain as nearly as possible how many counties would make collective county exhibits and how much space would be required for the juvenile department.

According to reports from the superintendents we feel confident of a dozen county exhibits and perhaps twice as many district exhibits which, in connection with the individual exhibits, will make the largest and best display of school children's industrial work ever assembled in any state.

It was decided at this meeting to waive the rule requiring library tables, made and exhibited by the children at the State Fair, to be of certain dimensions (28x46 in.), and permit the showing of different sized tables.

We find some of the children do not understand what is meant by "Best Account" in "poultry specials." A financial account is what is wanted—a statement of receipts and expenditures, showing as nearly as possible the profit or loss, as the case may be, that the child has made with its poultry business since January 1, 1913.

The object is to have the children learn simple bookkeeping and get the habit of keeping accounts of all their business transactions. In doing this, they will be able to ascertain the cost of production and what they can get the most profit on.

In connection with this financial account a nicely written statement regarding methods employed and experiences with different details of the business will add to its value.

We hope to have a large number of children competing for the nice prizes offered for "Best Account" as it will be good experience for them.

Advice For the Minister.

In preaching the minister had been rather long winded when the young bride remembered that she had left the dinner in the gas range without regulating the flame. She hastily wrote a note and slipped it to her husband, who was an usher. He, thinking it was intended for the minister, calmly walked up and laid it on the pulpit.

The minister paused in the midst of his sermon and took the note with a smile which changed into a terrific frown as he read:

"Please hurry home and shut off the gas."

About the Way.

A young man about to get married asked his father how he got on so well with his wife. The old man considered for a moment or two, and then he said:

"It's like this, John. If your wife is a good woman let her have her own way, and if she's a bad one she'll take it."—London Telegraph.
