Hopyard Changes Ownership

John Middleton and sons of Rickreall were over to Dallas last Friday completing the purchase of a 115 acre tract of fine hop land at Rickreall formerly owned by Samuel Orr, of Portland. Twenty-five acres of this land is already in hops and the remainder is all well suited to the same kind of crops. Mr. Orr and wife were down from Portland and the necessary papers in the transaction were made out by Sibley & Eakin. — Dallas Observer.

Lithography.

Alois Senefelder, the discoverer of lithography, was a poor musician driven to many straits to find material on which to engrave his compositions. One morning, when busy at work, his mother asked him to make out the bill for the washing, and in his hurry he wrote out the bill upon a piece of his smoothed Kelheim stone. The stone was laid aside, and when he saw it again the ink was so firmly set that the possibility occurred to him of an acid which should eat away the stone when not protected by the ink, leaving the writing in relief. From that idea was born the art of lithography. — New York American.

The Intelligent Bird.

Two negroes in Washington were overheard discussing the intelligence of birds in general.

"Birds is shore sensible," observed one to the other. "Yo' kin learn them anything. I uster work for a lady that had one in a clock, an' when it was time to tell de time it uster come out an' say cuckoo just as many times as de time was!"

"Yo' doan say so?" asked the other negro incredulously.

"Shore thing!" responded the first negro. "But de mos' wonderful part was dat it was only a wooden bird too!"

FREE HIP BONE

The season's most notable innovation is the perfection of the "Free Hip-Bone" idea in the new BON TON and ROYAL WORCESTER corsets.

This clever, new idea or feature, as expressed in these models, is absolutely practical. It assures supreme comfort, makes the corset fit snug and smooth, yet gives ample freedom to the wearer's hip bones whether seated, standing or walking.
