Large Body of National Forest Timber For Sale

According to the District Forester, Portland, Oregon, the Forest Service is now advertising the largest body of timber which has yet been put on sale in Oregon. It embraces 32 million feet of timber, most of which is yellow pine of good quality. It lies in two blocks—one near the shores of Pelican Bay on Klamath Lake and the other just east of the Crater National Park, and both within the Crater National Forest.

This prospectus is being distributed among those who are interested in the purchase of National Forest timber.

The minimum price at which bids will be accepted is $3.25 per M on one block and $3.00 per M on the other block for the yellow pine, sugar pine, lodgepole pine and western white pine, and $2.50 per M for the species of secondary importance.
