City Officials To Meet

U. of O., Eugene, May 17.—On May 27, the day before the annual commonwealth conference at the State University, the second annual session of the League of Oregon Municipalities will be held.

Charters for Oregon towns will be discussed during the forenoon. Benjamin Sheldon, of Medford, is to read a paper, and Willamette valley officials are scheduled to lead the argument. A second forenoon topic will be ideas for making Oregon towns individual. A town that is setting out to make itself individual is Ashland which has voted bonds for a municipal watering place and which hopes to become the Spa of the west. American watering places are operated privately, and Ashland hopes to model its enterprise on European municipal watering places.

Cheaper town government and better town government will be the opening afternoon topic. "Excess Condemnation in Municipal Improvements in Oregon," and city planning movements will be other subjects. An illustrated lecture on city plans will be given.
