Killed By Falling Tree

Lambert Shepard, for several years a resident of Falls City, was killed two miles above that place yesterday afternoon while employed in the woods felling timber for the Falls City Lumber company. A tree had lodged in another, and Shepard went back to the stump to dislodge it when he was struck on the head by a falling limb. The victim of the accident was immediately taken to Falls City on the logging train, from which place he was started in M. L. Thompson's automobile, with Mr. Thompson, Dr. Helliwell and L. G. McMurphy, for the Dallas hospital, but he never reached that institution alive, breathing his last when within a short distance of it.

The body was taken to the undertaking parlors without being removed from the automobile. Elmer Lewis followed soon after with Mrs. Shepard, wife of the injured man, but the husband was at the undertaker's when she arrived. By his untimely death a widow and four children are left to mourn.—Observer.

Ways of the Print Shop

Unobserved and Unannounced, the president of a church society entered the composing room of a newspaper just in time to hear these words issue from the mouth of the printer:

"Go to the devil and tell him to finish that 'murder, he began this morning. Then 'kill' W. J. Bryan's youngest grandchild, and 'dump' the 'Sweet' war nurse' into the hell-box. Then 'make up' that 'Naughty Parisian Actress' and lock up 'The Lady in Her Boudoir.'"

Horrified, the good woman fled and now her children are wondering why they are not allowed to play with the printer's youngster.
