OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Suver, Or., June 10, 1915.

Mr. Editor:

A Mr. Hendrick, speaking in the interest of the Liquor Dealers at Cincinnati the other day said: "It is time that the farmer and rural voter are made acquainted with the fact that tobacco and liquor revenue constitutes an enormous part of the receipts of the country."

And I hasten to add that it is time such men as this Hendrick is made acquainted with the fact that U. S. farmers are well aware that the misery, shame and poverty brought about by liquor and tobacco constitutes an enormity which is a large part of the receipts of the devil.

The liquor evil is too well known by even the farmers and rural voters (who in fact probably are as intelligent and much more vigorous than the average city highbrow) to be brought before the many at the present time in any way to change the public sentiment in its favor one little bit. The seed of knowledge has taken root and is rapidly becoming a strong, healthy plant that will do well in all countries.

GROVE A. PETERSON.

More "Big Business" Gone Dry

"Employees of this company are not permitted to visit saloons during the noon hour. Violations of this order will be at the employe's risk." In conspicuous places about the Wisconsin Steel Company's plant in Chicago this ruling was posted the other morning, and at noon the horde of workers filed straight by the three saloons located near the company's gate. "Wisconsin Steel has gone dry," said the head of the safety department. "We can't have the men's efficiency reduced by drinking during working hours. The men themselves will soon appreciate the value of the new ruling."
