Give Pledge to Governor

University of Oregon, Eugene, October 25.—Governor James Withycombe received this year the formal promise annually made by the students of the University of Oregon to repay in good citizenship their debt to the state. Gov. Withycombe was cheered vigorously by the students, who subscribed to the following pledge:

"As students of the University that is maintained by the people of Oregon, I heartily acknowledge the obligation I shall owe them. The opportunity open to me here for securing training, ideals, and vision for life I deeply appreciate and regard as a sacred trust, and do hereby pledge my honor that it shall be my most deeply cherished purpose to render as bountiful return to the Oregon people and their posterity in faithful and ardent devotion to the common good as will be in my power. It shall be the aim of my life to labor for the highest good and glory of an even greater commonwealth."

Governor Withycombe in his address described to the students the changed sentiment toward the University that he had encountered throughout the state, which change he ascribed to the earnest character of the University's work.
