A Birthday Surprise

On returning home from church Tuesday evening, Mr. W. H. Mack was certainly surprised by the household, Misses Fowle, Kellogg, Oliver, Misslich, Nimmo, Skersies, Cask, Notter, Hurner and Andersons having taken it upon themselves in preparing a most excellent lunch, consisting of sandwiches, cocoa, many kinds of wafers, also ice cream and cake in abundance, to remind Mr. Mack that his fifty-third birthday had been thought of several days previous and that a few others had been notified of the fact. Mr. Ritchey, Mr. Shaffer, Mr. Cornwell, Mrs. Alderson and son, Dick, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Whitcomb all having been to church but somehow or other had reached the Mack home before Mr. and Mrs. Mack arrived. His tardiness however can best be accounted for as (Mrs. M— is generally the last one from the church.) The entertainment consisted of a solo by Mr. Shaffer, a reading by Gladys Anderson and Miss Cask, several hymns by all and a toast by Miss Fowle. A march was then played by Miss Nimmo and each one having a partner, marched through the hall, each one serving themselves in cafeteria style. After that Mr. Mack was handed a lighted candle while each guest made a wish for Mr. Mack and after a few more songs and a speech by Mr. Ritchey each one retired, thanking the Normal girls that they had made it possible for the splendid time each had had.

Jewelry Talk

We are showing a very interesting collection of jewelry that is inexpensive--comparatively--yet looks as fine as the more costly. These are very handsome pieces, set with semi-precious stones, remarkably attractive combinations.
