

Frederick Warde

IN the lectures of the distinguished actor, author and lecturer, Frederick Warde, there are presented to the thinking people of America discourses which cannot fail to be of lasting benefit to the age. The last of a distinguished group of Shakespearean actors, of which the Booths, John McCullough, Lawrence Barrett, Barry Sullivan and Thomas Keene were members, Mr. Warde brings to the platform a personality whose attractiveness is undiminished by the flight of years and out of the fullness of a lifetime spent in the study of Shakespearean role gives a lecture recital which meets the highest requirement of histrionic art.

The purpose of Mr. Warde's recitals is to encourage and simplify the study of Shakespeare, to remove the mistaken impression of profundity and obscurity and illustrate the beauty of his poetry, the depth of his philosophy and the universality of his knowledge. He is the absolute master of his art, and his lecture-recitals are beautiful word pictures which create a profound impression wherever given.

Mr. Warde abandoned the stage because he would not prostitute his talents to the vitiated taste of the day, and his platform work is the effort of a great student and thinker to overcome the tendency of the times and to save that which is finest and best in dramatic art.

WOOD BLOCK PAVING

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 18—A tribute to wood block as a paving material is found in the decision of the finance committee of general council of Atlanta to authorize the paving of a part of West Peachtree Street with this material. West Peachtree is subjected to unusually heavy traffic and for years has been paved with rough surface material. Intersecting with Peachtree Street, the principal business street of Atlanta, it can be used to relieve the congested conditions on the latter street.

It has been realized by the city authorities for some time that a smooth surface material must be used on West Peachtree Street, and when the finance committee was asked to make an appropriation for the repaving of the street it specified that wood block be used between Peachtree Street and Sixth Street.

This decision was reached after a careful investigation of the wearing qualities of the material and a study of the reports of the construction department as to the manner in which wood block has withstood traffic on other busy streets.

The work of repaving the street will be started within a few weeks and it is expected that it will be completed before spring.—American Lumberman.
