I remember that upon one occasion a certain Farmers' Union lecturer was telling the farmers of Texas of the mistake they were making. He said: 'The great mistake with the Texas farmer is that he doesn't live at home; he depends on selling cotton too much. You are continually buying something and you don't ever sell anything. To illustrate what I mean, I need but call your attention to the fact that when you awake in the morning it is to the alarm of a Connecticut clock. You get up and button on Chicago suspenders to your Detroit overalls. You go out and wash your face with Cincinnati soap in an Indianapolis wash-basin. You sit down to your breakfast and eat from a table made in Grand Rapids, Mich., and you eat Chicago meat and your bread is made of Tennessee flour, cooked on a St. Louis stove. You go out and put on a New York bridle on a Kentucky mule, fed on Iowa corn, and plow your farm all day, which is covered with a Massachusetts mortgage. And at night when you get home you read a Bible printed in Boston and you say a prayer that was written in Jerusalem. And you crawl under a blanket manufactured in New Jersey to be kept awake all night by a damned dog—the only home product you have on the farm."
