Cheesemaker Married

The following from the Oregonian, dated Marshfield, is of interest to many Monmouth people:

—Miss Hazel Manwaring, known throughout the state as the only woman cheesemaker, was married November 30 to James Collier, foreman for the Southern Pacific bridge crews. The bride was a resident of Langlois for several years, and conducted cheese factories at Euchre Creek and Monmouth, doing all the work herself.

Mr. Collier is well known as an expert football and baseball player, and was with the San Jose State League Club two years ago.

Repair work on the Independence concrete bridge has been rushed to completion and the work was finished last week.

W. F. Campbell's automobile and an S. P. gas hand car while attempting to cross Monmouth street at the same place Tuesday forenoon, collided. Eight men were riding on the hand car and seeing their predicament fell in all directions when the collision occurred, but fortunately no one was hurt. Mr. Campbell's car was slightly damaged.—Enterprise.

Oregon's harvest of prunes brought more money to the state this year than any other horticultural product. Forty million pounds of prunes were processed for which the growers receive over nine millions of dollars.

Because of lack of interest, the exhibitors having dwindled from 50 to 10, it has been decided not to hold an annual poultry show for Polk county this January. Instead, an effort will be made to have a show with exhibitors embracing Marion, Linn, Yamhill, Washington and Polk.
