Items of Interest

G. G. Stone was in Salem on business the early part of the week.

Orin Isom of Brownsville visited with friends in Monmouth during the past week.

Harold Bogert of Kings Valley was a visitor in Monmouth during the latter part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Guthrie spent last Saturday and Sunday with their children in Corvallis.

Paul Tacheron has gone to Portland for a weeks' visit with relatives there and in Gresham.

That classic romance of childhood, the Prince and the Pauper, with Marguerite Clark in the title role, was the attraction for a large audience at the Norm theater last Thursday night. The Paramount pictures are always well staged and costumed and this was no exception to the rule. The familiar story with its exciting scenes held the interest of all.

W. E. Smith was registered at the Hotel Portland last Saturday.

Prof. J. M. Garrison of Salem was an over Monday night visitor with his niece, Mrs. K. H. Sickafoose.

A daughter was born in the Salem hospital Jan. 12th to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cooper of Independence.

Mr. and Mrs. Loggan of Portland are visiting this week at L. W. Waller's. Mrs. Loggan and Mrs. Waller are cousins.

Monroe Crabtree, a son of Mrs. Mary Lee of Monmouth, was married in McMinnville last week Thursday to Miss Laura Hayes of Whiteson. They will live near Albany.

The rear of the Lightfoot grocery is being embellished with a warehouse and the room in the post office block, which has been used for storage, will be diverted to some other end.

C. E. Deakin, M. J. Butler, O. A. Wolverton and C. F. Parker attended the session of the Independence Free Masons last Wednesday night, the latter furnishing material for "work" in the lodge.

Miss Myrtle Copenhaver left Tuesday to take up school duties at Warrenton. She was among the Normal students who took an active interest in Monmouth doings as well as in her regular school duties, and her absence will be missed, especially in the Baptist church where she was an active worker. Warrenton is located between Astoria and the ocean, as is also Hammond, where Ray Baker went to start work two weeks ago.

Men Milliners

A pleasant social event of last week was a party given by Mrs. W. J. Evans to a company of twenty friends, male and female. A feature of the evening was the art of feminine hat trimming as exhibited by the men members of the party. Each gentleman was given the frame work of a lady's hat of ancient vintage and with it trimmings for its adornment. There were turkey feathers and bits of silk and velvet of various colors, and some of the combinations achieved are declared to be very striking. The ladies of the party had been numbered and corresponding numbers attached to the hat and its trimmer, the three being partners for refreshments. And the latter brought to a conclusion a very enjoyable evening.

W. W. Stockton of Sheridan, uncle of D. M. Hampton, was the guest of the latter and of other Monmouth relatives this week.
