Death of Marjorie Murdock

Contributed

It is with much sadness that the friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Murdock and J. L. Murdock read of the death of their beloved Marjorie, who died at the home of her parents in Kelso, Wash., June 19, 1918, after an illness of two weeks. Deceased was six years eight month and ten days of age. She was greatly beloved by all who knew her because of her sweet and loving disposition and endearing ways.

Amid a profusion of beautiful flowers, she was laid away in the cemetery near her former country home at Yamhill, Oregon.

Besides parents and grandparents, she leaves a small brother and sister, five aunts and five uncles who mourn the loss of the flower gathered so early in the morning of her life.

The Reaper and the Flowers

Three is a Reaper whose name is Death,
And, with his sickle keen,
He reaps the bearded grain at a breath,
And the flowers that grow between.

"Shall I have naught that is fair?"
saith he;
"Have naught but the bearded grain?"

Though the breath of these flowers is sweet to me, I will give them all back again."

He gazed at the flowers with tearful eyes,
He kissed their drooping leaves;
It was for the Lord of Paradise
He bound them in his sheaves.

"My Lord has need of these flower-ets gay,"

The reaper said and smiled;
"Dear tokens of the earth are they,
Where he was once a child.

"They shall all bloom in fields of light,

Transplanted by my care,
And saints upon their garments
white,
These sacred blossoms wear."

And the mother gave, in tears and pain,

The flowers she most did love;
She knew that she would find them all again

In the fields of light above.

Oh not in cruelty, not in wrath,
The reaper came that day;

'Twas an angel visited the green earth,
And took the flowers away.
