Farewell Reception

Mrs. M. J. Read and daughter Miss Elizabeth are leaving Monmouth this week, the former to live in Seattle and the latter will probably engage in some form of war work. The Reads have lived here long enough to have made a niche for themselves and will be missed from our midst. The Misses Butler entertained the ladies of the C. W. B. M. of which Mrs. Read is a member, with a few others, at a very pleasant farewell reception at their home on Tuesday evening. About twenty five women were present. Light refreshments of punch and assorted wafers were served by the hostesses and all united in expressing to the departing friends their best wishes.

Distinguished Visitors

Judge Ellis and wife and Mr. Davidson and wife, prominent leaders of Bend, Oregon, were pleasant callers of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Guthrie Wednesday. They were accompanied by Miss Kinney, Domestic Science teacher of Bend High School. Mrs. Davidson is a teacher of fifth and sixth grades in Bend schools. They were enroute from an outing at Newport where they had had clam chowder in the best delicatessen style made by Miss Kinney. They left a generous portion with Mr. and Mrs. Guthrie also fresh lobsters. This was their first trip to the Willamette valley and they were highly pleased with the country and took samples of fruit and vegetables away with them.

They traveled in a Buick Six car and left for Bend by way of Salem, Portland, Columbia Highway and The Dalles.

Tractor Demonstration

The Oregon Agricultural college will unite with the Portland Implement and Tractor Association to make the great Northwest Tractor demonstration to be held in Portland September 5, 6 and 7 a gigantic success. Every agriculturist in the Pacific Northwest should attend.

The forenoon of each day will be given over to private demonstrations of tractors and tractor implements. The afternoons will be devoted to public demonstrations, showing every Tractor in operation plowing in one field. This demonstration will be of special interest as it will show comparative work of large and small tractors working side by side.

There will be special tests under the auspices of the Oregon Agricultural College which will show the draw-bar horse power tests on unplowed and plowed ground and other features of various tractors. Said tests will be approved by the Society of Agricultural engineers.

Each demonstrator will have an individual tent where he can entertain visitors and transact business.

The grounds are easily reached by electric cars or automobiles. The auto roads are asphalt paved all the way. Ample parking space for automobiles will be provided free. Watchmen to look after automobiles will be in attendance.

ganization, is arranging another treat for farmers. This time it will be in the nature of a tractor demonstration in which ten or a dozen tractors of the most popular makes will take part. The demonstration will be held on Saturday, August 31, on some farm close to Corvallis. The place and the exact time of starting has not been determined but it will probably be an all day affair and not merely the plowing of one or two furrows. County Agent Kable is arranging the details of the show and he promises that it will be worth a day of any farmer's time to see it.
