T. H. Halleck of Newport, who has been visiting with his parents in Monmouth, says that much waste attended the spruce work at the hands of soldiers in Newport. Discipline among them, he says, was very lax. Some of the officers had little command over the men who delighted in setting their authority at naught. Many worked as not as the mood possessed them and when word came that the armistice was signed the men all quit work and would not cut wood even for the fires so it was necessary to haul in coal. Nevertheless, said Mr. Halleck, a great deal of work was accomplished and had the war continued, spruce in large quantities would have come out of Lincoln county for use in aeroplanes.

H. E. Guthrie has been busy the past week superintending the putting of a new covering on the roof of the meat market.

Chas. Atwater, returning soldier, was in Monmouth Monday, on the way to his home in Lewisville. He was a member of Company L but because of rheumatism saw very little active service. He was in the advance zone in France for seven months.
