Holding that the law enacted by the 1917 session of the Oregon legislature empowering the public service commission to grant franchises to logging companies for operating splash dams and flooding of streams for the floating of logs is unconstitutional, Judge H. H. Belt in the circuit court here has granted a permanent injunction against the Spaulding Logging company from operating under its franchise on the Luckiamute river in Polk county. The suit for injunction was brought against the logging company by J. F. Logan, who owns and operates a grist mill on the Luckiamute at Kings Valley. Logan asserted that the flooding of the stream by the loggers interfered with the operation of his mill and caused him damage.

Judge Belt holds that the act is unconstitutional from the fact that it conflicts with the constitutional right of an individual to have his property assessed and damages awarded before it may be taken in whole or part for public service and on the further ground that the legislature cannot delegate the power to grant franchises to another legislative body, such as a county court or city council.

The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

Evangelical Church Notes

Sunday, April 27. Subject for 11 a. m., "The Christian Race." For 8 p. m., "Singleness of Aim." Sunday School at 10. Y. P. A. at 7:15. Subject: "Christianity and the Toilers of America." Leader, Miss Della Brant.

The next time you meet a newsboy with his load of papers, remove your hat reverently. You are standing in the presence of the world's greatest power, Publicity.

You and I, being plain, common, ordinary citizens with one vote apiece—it is no longer safe to lump the family ballot—have become mighty important factors of late years. You and I believed a little while ago that Zara was a Spanish dancer and Ragusa a member of the spaghetti and ravioli family. We have found out that Zara and Ragusa are in the territory claimed by both the Italians and the Jugo-Slavs. You and I are too busy worrying about the high cost of narrow skirts and low shoes to do anything about the squabble. Nevertheless the Italian government and the Jugo-Slav interests maintain large publicity organizations in this country and abroad in order to tell you and me how just, righteous, reasonable and logical their respective claims are.

You and I can't do anything, but we can think and talk about the dispute. If enough of the ninety million of us think and talk in favor of the Jugo-Slav side, Washington will soon feel the weight and pressure of our collective opinion.

Publicity, though, is not a foreign invention. In fact, it reached its highest development and widest application in America long before
