

Monmouth Herald
Oct. 3, 1919

Oregon Made Woolens

"Woven where the wool is grown."

Many do not realize that we have an Oregon industry that was founded as long ago as 1864, and that has grown until its business is nation wide. The Oregon City Woolen Mills is one of the few big industries of this country where every detail in the manufacture of woolen goods is completed under one roof.

The wool is cleaned, dyed, spun, and then woven into the staunch Oregon City fabrics on their own looms.

Their tailors then take the Mackinaw fabrics and overcoatings and fashion them into smart, well-made garments for men.

We have a liberal shipment of snappy new style overcoats, mackinaw coats, and flannel shirts.

Come in and see for yourself how stylish and well made an Oregon manufactured garment can be.

Miller Mercantile Company

Six popular Stores: Monmouth, Newberg, Yamhill, McMinnville, Sheridan and Dayton

Intelligent Nantucket Dog.

Whenever the steamer Gay Head sounds her whistle at 6:45 mornings at Nantucket, Harrigan, the town dog, runs down to the dock and aboard the boat, and then down into the dining saloon for his breakfast. He knows the sound of the Gay Head's whistle and never shows up on the three mornings when the Sankaty is at the dock. He figures the time so carefully that he always is through when the call comes to go ashore.—Boston Globe.

Royal Academy Dean Is Eighty-Six.

The doyen of the Royal academy is B. W. Leader, the landscape painter, who, although eighty-six, is still going strong and painting his lovely Surrey towns as well as ever.

But there are others not far behind him in age who write "R. A." after their names. London Answers says. G. A. Storey is eighty-four, G. D. Leslie, eighty-three; W. F. Yeames the same age, the president himself (Sid Edward Poynter), eighty-two, while Briton Riviere, Marcus Stone and Sir William Richmond are far past three score and ten, and there are a dozen others verging on that limit.

FACING THE FACTS

The national debt of the United States at the end of the fiscal year 1911-1912 was $1,040,340,000, or $10.40 for each person living in this country, figuring on the basis of 100,000,000 population. The national debt of the United States on June 1, 1919, was $25,421,151,270. This simply means that every person in the United States faces a national debt that averages $251.10. If conditions that have become so radically changed by this so greatly increased debt are to become in any wise normal, they can come in just one way—the absorption of this bonded debt by the savings of the people.

The answer given the Senate Committee by the governor, W. P. G. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, to their query as to what legislation was needed at this time and to relieve the financial situation, was: "The Federal Reserve Board believes that any currency legislation at this time is unnecessary and undesirable and would suggest that whether viewed from an economic or financial standpoint, the remedy for the present situation is the same, namely: 'Work and save.'"

DON'T BE LIKE ME

The people have got to spend less and save more.

The people can save. Uninvested money is dissipated too easily and is wasted too often. If the money is in the pocket, that new luxury really not needed is usually gotten, for it is easy to convince one's self that it is good business to buy the thing one wants. Invested money earns interest, it is not so easily spent, and it encourages the saving of more.

S. H. Hinkle has disposed of his wood saw to A. L. Stimpson and the latter is now slicing up the wood piles when the weather and the supply of labor permit.

J. W. Larson, manager of the creamery, now has his family here, Mrs. Larson and two small girls having come from their home in Canby last week. They are domiciled in the Riddell house, recently vacated by E. L. Kilen.

Mrs. Amos Holman of Dallas is visiting with relatives in this city.

To Let—Housekeeping rooms for two girls; nice comfortable and homelike. Mrs. W. H. Mack.

A letter received this week from Mrs. J. S. Miller of Salem states that she has just returned from a visit in Southern Oregon and California.

J. B. Stump and Son won premiums at the state fair on milk goats and were given a number of awards on Angora goats. Riddell and Sons were also exhibitors and winners on Angora goats as well as on Cotswold sheep. Donald Skeen was recognized in the awards for industrial club work with chickens.

Jacob Smith and family who have visited off a few weeks with relatives in Polk county, left this week for Phoenix, Arizona, where they plan to spend the winter.

See Us For

Kodaks
and Supplies

Developing and Printing

Perkins' Pharmacy

If we haven't got it we'll get it. Ask us.