MAUD CATREN Polyphonist at Chautauqua

When you think of an imitator of sounds, a polyphonist, think of Maud Catren. Mrs. Catren can imitate most anything you ever heard, animals, birds—even the Rocky Mountain "canary" with his "Hee Haw"—engines; phonographs, or the Chautauqua baby. She is simply a scream and the kiddies are sure of a treat when she is on the platform. If the kiddies enjoy it, the gray headed "boys and girls" will, also, for it is all good clean entertainment. Mrs. Catren shares with Lawrence Timbers, the Walt Mason man, the afternoon evening prelude time on the fourth day. Leave your dignity at home and come and enjoy yourself.
