Eighty Years Young

Orville Butler was eighty years old Monday and celebrated the event with the aid of a party of relatives consisting of Dr. O. D. Butler and Word Butler of Independence, V. L. Butler of Orville and J. B. V. Butler of Monmouth and their wives, Mr. Butler's genial outlook on life keeps him from growing old, a matter expressed in verse in a communication received from his son, J. Dean Butler of Oregon City.

Here's to your happiness; here's to your health;

And here's to your cheerful way. Here's to your youthfulness, that is your wealth;

For you're eighty years young today.

You're the kind of a dad to have for a dad

With your fatherly—brotherly way.

A friend in our trouble and glad when we're glad,

And you're eighty years young today.

You've weathered the storms thru the snows of the years,

Yet your life's like the month of May.

Here's drinking your health, in laughter, not tears.

For you're eighty years young today.

Dean.

What is the Secret of the Great Strength of the Powerful Fordson

Is it the the four husky cylinders 4 inches in diameter with a 5 inch stroke?

Is it the perfect kerosene carburetion?

Is it because of the strength of the Ford magneto?

NOTE: The Ford magneto is the only magneto in the world which furnishes electric current enough to fire the motor and light three to five lights at the same time.

The secret of strength of the powerful Fordson is not in these alone but is also in the fact that the Fordson has the only truly efficient type of final drive.

The only gear which changes the direction of your power and at the same time gives you a maximum speed reduction and this at a minimum of loss by friction.
