WITH THE FUNNY MEN

Had His Doubt.
The Counsellor—What, you broke over having a hand in that big box job? I thought you fellows had a gentlemen's agreement to share the loot.
The Yegg—We had. But I suspect some of the parties to it were no gentlemen.

Pertinent Illustration.
"What have you there?"
"A booklet entitled, 'Short Cuts to Riches.'"
"Ah! I see there's a mountain of dollars on the cover. To be consistent, there should be the picture of a pennitentiary on the back."

Too Comprehensive.
"Of course," said Senator Sorghum, "I approve of freedom of speech; but I don't like our colleague's idea of it."
"What is his idea?"
"The universe as an audience and eternity as the time limit."

Missed Opportunity.
"I read the other day where a woman dislocated her jaw by yawning and became speechless."
"And I have been trying to break my wife of yawning because it seemed such a rude habit!"

A Surmise.
"What busted Cholly?"
"Dunno."
"He was apparently doing well selling tips on the stock market."
"Maybe he got to playing his own tips."

Monmouth, Oregon, August 20, 1920

To Our Boy Customers,

You of course have heard of the WEARPLEDGE suits made for boys, and wished your suit was insured so that mother would not be so afraid you were going to ruin your new suit every time you wore it. Our McMinnville store has a very large stock of these clothes, and has been offering them at a very liberal reduction from the regular price; so we asked the privilege of making the same offer to our Monmouth boys.

They have sent us a lot of them (Insurance policies too), sizes six to sixteen, in very desirable fabrics and best styles. The values are extremely good, but you pay TWENTY PERCENT LESS than the regular marked price. This means that we will insure you against suit troubles at a cost to you of $11.60 to $18.80. Live leather belt is included with each suit.

Yours truly,
Miller Mercantile Company
