And get more genuine chewing satisfaction, when you use this class of tobacco.

This is because the full, rich, real tobacco taste lasts so long, you don't need a fresh chew nearly as often.

And a small chew gives more real satisfaction than a big chew of the ordinary kind ever did.

Any man who uses the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.

SPEED IN NEWS SENDING

Recent Invention, Called the Teletype.
Delivers 50 Printed Words a Minute.

The fastest machine ever invented for transmitting news events is called the teletype.

While news by ordinary telegraph in the Morse code came in at the rate of thirty-five words a minute, the teletype printed the messages at the rate of fifty words a minute.

The teletype is a simple, compact instrument which prints the messages on a strip of paper one-half inch wide, similar to the ordinary ticker "tape."

Its inventors assert it will operate for long periods without adjustment or attention beyond supplying it with paper and ink. It is said to be so simple it can be operated by any one with an elementary knowledge of electricity and mechanics.

Any reasonable number of receiving stations may receive news by its use from one central transmitting station. These may either be connected all on one wire or a number of wires radiating from a central station may be used.

The same principle is used in the teletype as in the simple Morse telegraph, only by omitting a series of clicks the movement of the keys causes the machine at the other end of the wire to print proper letters. Instead of sending out dots and dashes, which require skill and training in transmission, the operator merely presses a typewriter key and the receiving machine prints the required letter.

A small motor, such as is used to supply power for many modern office appliances, operates the teletype. The rolls of "tape" on which the news is printed are large enough to receive from 15,000 to 16,000 words before replacement.

Flattery.

It is impossible to tell the whole truth to an average human being and still to remain on terms of friendship with him. There is little friendship without make-believe. If two men are close friends, you may take it that they have been pretending to a considerably higher estimate of each other than they would set down in a perfectly honest diary.

It is not necessary that they should deliberately lie to one another, but they must discreetly conceal a certain amount of the criticism that is going on all the time behind the bones of their skulls.

What is said in a spirit of truth is set down to malice. Can a man be your friend if he steals the crown from your head? Can he be your friend even if he steals a single jewel from your crown—especially the paste jewel? We have all—the greatest and the meanest of us—paste jewels in our crowns. Will a true friend point them out to a world that is already over-much inclined to scoff? Or will he not rather organize a clique that will pretend to be dazzled by diamonds?

Man is not only a realist. He is also a lover of romance. He dreams of what he would be quite as often as he deplures what he is. He cannot help being attracted by people who make his dream appear true. There are some men who are such intense egotists that they can believe in the truth of their dreams without any assistance from other people. Southey agreed that his "Madoc" was "the best English poem since 'Paradise Lost.'" There was no need to tell him so; he knew it already.—New Statesman, London.

How Do You Wind Your Watch?

When you wind your watch up at night you do not feel that you have performed a very strenuous operation; neither have you. But multiply the operation by 20, 100, 200, and you begin to have visions of aching fingers and sore thumbs. This is exactly the way the watch repairer finds it.

To save both time and fingers, an ingenious watchmaker invented the winder. It is merely a metal clip to hold the watch and a clutch that engages the winding key. Insert the watch in the clip, hold it tightly, turn the handle a few times and the watch is wound.—Popular Science Monthly.

Why Mice Dread the Weasel.

All the weasels, and there are upward of 40 species of them, are distinctly carnivorous, says the American Forestry Magazine, and it is not known that they ever touch anything else, as berries or any herb or vegetable growth. All of the smaller weasels live principally upon mice, and these they are able to follow straight down into their holes. Through such places they squirm in and out with as much ease as the mice themselves, the latter being thoroughly terrorized when it becomes known to them that there is a weasel in the neighborhood.

Bill, the Builder

Hits the Nail on the Head When He Says—

"'Tis Cheaper to Build Well at the Start Than to Make Repairs All Your Life"

Don't make the mistake of buying building material by price only. Under-size timbers that cannot stand the strain of weight are a poor investment at any price. A little careful attention to the requirements of your material will often save the expense of frequent repairs.
