MODIFY CATTLE RULES ON "T.B."

That Shippers May Understand Restrictions Regulation Has Been Clarified.

TEST EMIGRANT SHIPMENTS
Registration of Temperatures Discontinued at Eighteenth Hour After Injection of Tuberculin—Heifers on Same Basis.

Modifications in the restrictions on interstate shipment of cattle imposed for the prevention of the spread of cattle tuberculosis are announced by the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture. In order that live stock shippers may more readily understand the restrictions, the entire regulation has been redrafted and the language clarified.

One of the modifications is for the aid of emigrants who live in sparsely settled sections of the country where it would be very expensive to have their cattle tested before moving them to another state. Such shipments usually do not pass through public stockyards, and veterinarians are not always available in such sections. The new regulation, therefore, permits emigrant shipments to be tested en route or at the destination. Permission to do so, however, must first be received from the bureau inspector in charge of tuberculosis eradication work in the state of destination, or from the proper state official.

Data gathered from the various state and bureau field workers, it is said, clearly indicate that the tuberculosis test can be shortened two hours without interfering with its efficiency. A modification, therefore, was made permitting the registering of temperatures to be discontinued at the eighteenth hour after the injection of tuberculin instead of the twentieth hour.

Time Limit Removed.
It was found advisable, too, to remove the time limit in which purchased tuberculous cattle may be returned to their original owners. The present regulations require them to be re-shipped within four months. The re-drafted regulation places holders on the same basis as all other female cattle subject to the test.

Jersey Cow With All Markings of a Good Milk Producer.

WEEVILS AND OTHER INSECTS
Little Pests May Be Kept Out of Seeds by Use of Carbon Bisulfide—How to Treat Them.

Weevils and other insects may be kept out of seeds by the use of carbon bisulfide. Seeds should be treated once as soon as the planting season is over, which will protect them from weevil during the summer. The second treatment should be given in the fall before cold weather comes on. To treat seeds with carbon bisulfide, put them in a jar, tub or other vessel which can be covered tightly. Put in about one tablespoonful of carbon bisulfide for every 10 gallons of space in the enclosure. Allow the seeds to remain in the fumes of the carbon bisulfide over night, then take them out and place again in dry storage quarters.

PUTTING ALFALFA INTO SILO
Good Results Have Been Obtained Where Rain Interferes With Making Hay.

In sections where rain interferes with alfalfa hay making, good results have been obtained by putting the alfalfa in the silo. The most favorable reports state that the alfalfa should be in full bloom or fairly well matured before cutting for silage. It should be cut when the dew is on or wet from rain and hurried to the silo. Cut in short lengths, the finer the better, as it packs more firmly and keeps with less waste. When put into the silo before it becomes sufficiently mature, alfalfa makes a very sour silage and has a disagreeable odor. First crop alfalfa is preferred by most of the men who have tried alfalfa silage.

CULLING IS CONTINUOUS JOB
Breeder Who Waits Until Fall to Dispose of Poor Specimens Will Lose Money.

The hen in good health and laying condition is a veritable high-speed, heavy-duty dynamo, and requires special facilities and special conditions in which to live and do her best. She needs an abundance of fresh air and exercise to aid digestion, purify the blood and keep her healthy and productive. She must have a comfortable home.
