

Baptist Church and Community House

"The House by the Side of the Road"

The Building

In June, 1919 the American Baptist Home Missionary Society and Oregon Baptist Convention gave $1,000.00 toward the purchase price of "The Maples" property. In March, 1920 the above organizations gave $5,000.00 toward the new church and community building, the local church to donate its old building, moved onto the new site and, with the people of the community to erect an addition thereto, to cost not less than $6,000.00, exclusive of fittings and furnishings. Excavation began June 2.

On the main floor beside the chapel are the general parlors, public library and pastor's office. On the second floor temporary living quarters for the pastor's family and a small balcony. The basement has accommodations for kitchen and large social hall. As soon as means are provided this room will be equipped with games and recreation devices so as to be used as a young people's club room for those "all dressed up and no place to go." All this is for the service of the whole community, so that our building may ever be in appointments and spirit.

"The House by the Side of the Road"

There are hermit souls that live withdrawn

In the place of their self content;

There are souls like stars that dwell apart

In a fellowless firmament;

There are pioneer souls that blaze a path

Where highways never ran,

Let me live in a house by the side of the road

And be a friend to man.

Let me live in a house by the side of the road

Where the race of men go by,—

The men that are good, the men that are bad,

As good and as bad as I.

Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat

Or hurl the cynic's ban?

Let me live in a house by the side of the road

And be a friend to man.

Let me live in a house by the side of the road

Where the race of men go by.

They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,

Wise, foolish; so am I.

Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat

Or hurl the cynic's ban?

Let me live in a house by the side of the road

And be a friend to man.

How, When and Where to Feed Baby Chicks

To raise chickens and to make a success of it all depends on how they are cared for. In times past people thought all that a chicken needed was a little feed thrown out in the mud and a mud hole of water to drink from. But that time has passed.

Baby chicks should have a clean, dry place with two rooms; one the brooder and the other for a feed room and cooling room. The feeding troughs and water troughs should be washed every morning as regularly as you wash your dishes. Baby chicks should never be fed until they are from forty eight to fifty hours old. Then they should have a little food but not of a rich nature as that is unnecessary.

We recommend wheat bran as the first feed. This should be sprinkled on a clean board or paper where the chicks can get it. Also sprinkle some fine charcoal where they can get to it easily; with plenty of clean, sour milk. Feed this for the first two or three days; then commence feeding Kerr's brand chick feed, feeding this alternately with the wheat bran. Feed sparingly. Endeavor to keep the chicks keen for each feed.

They should be fed four times daily as follows: 8 A. M.—bran; 11 A. M.—chick feed; 2 P. M.—bran; 5 P. M.—chick feed. The sour milk can be kept before them all the time; also keep plenty of clean, fresh water before them all the time with a very little chick grit. Feed the above ration until the chicks are from 10 to 12 days old. Then gradually replace the bran with Kerr's developing mash, and feed the same until the chicks are about 5 weeks old. Then feed the developing mash in a hopper and feed Kerr's growing food three times daily, morning, noon and night. After the chicks are about 2 months old, twice a day is enough of the growing food. The developing food should be kept before them until the pullets are put in the laying house. The above is for chicks hatched in February, March and April.

Later chicks, such as May and June must be fed a little differently. Feed the same as above for two weeks, then commence feeding Kerr's developing mash wet with sour milk or butter milk for the first feed in the morning, and the noon feed, giving the growing food at night.

Always bear in mind that just before the chick leaves the shell it absorbs the yolk of the egg into its body. This is nature's method of supplying nourishment for the chick until it is old enough to hunt its feed.

Why Chicks Die and How to Prevent Many Losses

As a general rule when chicks commence to die the owner thinks his chicks have some desperate disease and knows not what to do, where nine cases out of ten it is due to some carelessness in keeping the brooder free from mites and lice, or unsanitary conditions in the brooder, or in the feed troughs, or poor feed.

Here are some of your troubles and how to prevent them.

If your chickens are looking poor, feathers rough, legs white or bluish, eyes dull and wings drooping, but no sign of bowel trouble, and still a good appetite, your brooder has mites in it some where, which suck the blood from the chicks at night. Remove the chicks and give the house a good scrubbing with boiling water and spray with some good fluid sold for that purpose. Remember, you won't find the mites unless you look for them.

Another danger point:—If your chicks begin to look weak and fall over at a slight touch and the feathers look dull and the wings droop to the floor, and the chickens will be standing around and fall over with two or three kicks and are dead, you lack ventilation and exercise. Be sure to have lots of fresh air but avoid drafts by all means. Get the chicks on the ground as soon as the weather permits.

A Few Danger Points

When an artificial brooder is used there is danger of the chicks crowding in one corner of the room and smothering a lot of them. To prevent this some one should be in the room at night while the chicks are going to bed to see that they get distributed evenly around the brooder. Never leave a dead chick where the others will find it as they may eat it, resulting in more losses. Never allow a board or other obstruction where the wind will blow it down and kill a chick. If your chicks are missing one at a time and you can't find them keep a watch for a sneaking cat or a hawk.

CENTRAL PORTION OF CORK DESTROYED

Incendiary Bombs Start Fires; Damage Is Placed at Millions.

Dublin.—The central portion of the city of Cork was burned to the ground Sunday night and other portions of the city were still ablaze.

The conflagration followed an ambush of the military at Pillons Cross Saturday night in which four persons were killed and many wounded.

Three civilians were taken from their houses and shot dead after the ambush of the military. Then the fires started. There were bomb explosions and firing also was heard. The populace was panic stricken. A dispatch from Cork said that the fire hose was out, rendering useless the efforts of the firemen.

Two acres soon became a furnace. The front walls of houses were blown out with bombs.

Several blocks of buildings in the heart of the business district of Cork were destroyed by fire during the night, constituting the costliest destruction of property since the reprisals began in Ireland.

Early estimates placed the damage at between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 pounds sterling.

Cork, Ireland.—More than 300 buildings are said to have been destroyed in the fires which Sunday laid waste a great part of this city. Most of the fires have been extinguished, but there are occasional sporadic outbursts of flames.

A military patrol was ambushed at Cloyne, seven miles east of Queens-town. The attackers threw bombs from two houses, but were defeated. Two attackers were killed, several wounded and two captured. One soldier was wounded. The houses from which the bombs were thrown were burned.

PROCLAIM MARTIAL LAW IN IRELAND

London.—Martial law has been proclaimed from Dublin castle over the city and county of Cork, the city and county of Limerick and the counties of Tipperary and Kerry.

In an announcement made to the house of commons Premier Lloyd George declared it was the intention of the British government to put down the lawlessness which for months had been prevalent in Ireland.

Dublin city and the county of Dublin, although they have been the scene of numerous affrays and of much vandalism, were not included in the district under martial law, but Mr. Lloyd George told the commons that if conditions should warrant the interdiction area would be extended.

Under the proclamation, persons who without authority possess arms or unauthorized uniforms must surrender them within a certain period or say themselves liable to trial by court-martial and the death penalty.

ANTI-ALIEN LAW IS DRASTIC

California No Longer Permits Japanese to Lease Farms.

Sacramento, Cal.—California's new and more drastic anti-alien land law, an initiative act approved at the general election last month, is now effective.

It withdraws the three-year agricultural land leasing privileges from aliens ineligible to citizenship and seeks to close loopholes in the original law of 1913 through which, it is said, Japanese were continuing to gain control of California farm land.

Specifically it provides that no alien ineligible to citizenship nor any organization controlled by such aliens may act as guardian of a minor who, because of birth in this country, may legally acquire agricultural land.

Uncle Sam Making Big Guns.

Washington.—Production of ordnance material, particularly main battery guns and fire control instruments, for the seventeen major ships now under construction for the navy progressed satisfactorily throughout the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of Rear Admiral Charles B. McVay, Jr. chief of the bureau of ordnance.

J. S. Ships Predominate in Hamburg.

Hamburg.—Ten American ships were counted Saturday in a general tour of Hamburg harbor, as against six flying the British flag, four the French, four the Dutch and one the Japanese.

Caruso Burst Blood Vessel Singing.

New York.—Enrico Caruso, tenor, burst a blood vessel in his throat while singing at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. The accident, it was said is not serious.

"In Every Respect"

says the Good Judge

You get more genuine chewing satisfaction from the Real Tobacco Chew than you ever got from the ordinary kind.

The good tobacco taste lasts so long—a small chew of this class of tobacco lasts much longer than a big chew of the old kind. That's why it costs less to use.

Any man who has used both kinds will tell you that.
