GOT NO CREDIT FOR SONG

How Thomas A'Beckett Wrote a Version of "Hail Columbia" and Another Man Claimed It.

There are three patriotic songs known as "Columbia," and there is not always as much care in distinguishing them as there should be, the Philadelphia Record remarks.

In "Songs That Every Child Should Know" Dolores Bacon has included "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," which she credits to Dr. Timothy Dwight. That eminent man, so closely identified with the history of Yale, wrote another "Columbia."

"Columbia, Columbia, to glory arise, The queen of the world and the child of the skies."

Both "Hail Columbia" and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" are Philadelphia products, though the tune of the former, known before Joseph Hopkinson set the words to it as "The President's March," has a somewhat obscure and disputed origin. Both of these songs were born on the stage; they were written for the benefit of actors. An actor named Fox appealed to Hopkinson to write some verses that he could sing to "The President's March," and the result was "Hail Columbia," produced in 1798.

Thomas A'Beckett, whose son of the same name died last year, wrote to Admiral Preble an account of his composition.

"In the fall of the year 1843, being then engaged as an actor at the Chestnut street theater in Philadelphia, I was waited upon by D. T. Shaw (then singing at the Chinese museum) with the request that I would write him a song for his benefit night. He produced some patriotic lines and asked my opinion of them. I found them ungrammatical, and so deficient in measure as to be totally unfit to be adapted to music. We adjourned to the house of a friend (G. Hartford) and I then wrote the two first verses in pencil, and at Miss Hartford's piano I composed the melody. On reaching my home I added the third verse, wrote the symphonies and arrangements and made a fair copy in ink and gave it to Mr. Shaw, requesting him not to give or sell a copy."

Shaw, however, procured its publication by Willig of Philadelphia as a song "written, composed and sung by David T. Shaw, and arranged by T. A'Beckett, Esq." A'Beckett asserted his rights and obtained their admission, but "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" has often been published as Shaw's work.

Airlie

A baby named William Lewis Weinart arrived at the Dallas hospital last week.

A baby arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Odessa Kilmore in the Berry Creek district recently.

Glen Hadley is spending a few days in Portland.

John McBee who has been working in F. L. Tubandt's logging camp since early in the fall, cut his foot last Friday. Soon after he began work in the afternoon his ax glanced and cut a deep gash in the top of his foot. Dr. Hewitt was called and put five stitches in it.

Happy Cooper is suffering with a broken rib this week. He was working on a side hill and in some way lost his balance, and fell and rolled down hill until he struck the end of a log.

The Airlie church is getting nearer completion every day.

At last the Airlie girls have a game of basket ball. The game will be held at Dallas Friday, January 21.

George Jarvis is visiting his brother at Sheridan who is seriously ill.

Charles Tarter is piling lumber for Davis & Webber.

Elkins and Quinby played basket ball at the Airlie gym last Saturday night. The Elkins players and rooters broke the crank shaft of the truck they came in and had to stay in Airlie all night. The girls stayed at the Hotel and the boys stayed at Bills pool hall.
