DIVERS MISHAPS DELAY WORK

Careless Use of Unprotected Machinery Takes Toll of Limbs That Would Be Prevented With Use of Safety Devices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmer Brown was driving the doctor back to town, after he had set neighbor William Johnson's fractured leg and dressed three caved-in ribs, Johnson seemed to be in bad luck constantly, and the neighbors were circulating a subscription paper for him and arranging a "bee" to do up his unfinished work.

Earlier in the season a hold-back broke on a hill. The horse ran away, throwing Johnson to the ground and confining him to bed several days in a busy period.

A little later one of his little boys stepped on a garden rake which had been left back down on the ground, and ran a tine through his foot. The child was taken to the doctor to have the wound dressed, but not until infection had set in, and he would always be a trifle lame.

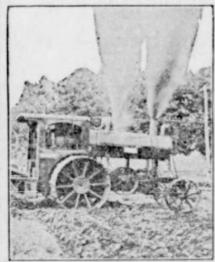

Delays Farm Work.

A hired man stepped through a loose board of a barn loft, and farm and household work was delayed while he recovered.

This latest misfortune was the worst of the season. Johnson had been shingling the barn, using a common prop scaffolding, made by placing wooden brackets against the side of the building and supporting them with two-by-four scantling, set at an angle of 45 degrees and anchored at the foot with stakes and stones. He had undertaken to carry a bunch of shingles to the roof. An upper rung, previously broken from the ladder, had been replaced with a two-inch shingle band, nailed on with eight-penny nails. The wood in the side of the ladder was dozy and the nails gave way under Johnson's weight. The jolt as he struck the next rung upset the ladder, and down tumbled Johnson, ladder, scaffolding and shingles, all in a heap on the ground.

"Pretty tough on Johnson," observed Brown. "They talk about farming being a safe and healthful pursuit; but I'll bet he didn't think so when that bunch of shingles pursued him and smashed his ribs."

"Farming is healthful," said the old doctor, "providing people would take reasonable care of themselves. It ought to be safe as any ordinary occupation; but the observations of the United States Department of Agriculture and the National Safety council show that every year hundreds of people are maimed and killed in farm accidents, a large part of which are preventable. "I don't know where some farmers find economy in keeping a horse that will shy at anything and kick anybody who comes near hlm. Perhaps they like to feel their mastery, but the horse usually gets his inning in the end. And of course there is danger to inexperienced persons. "No bull above two years old should be permitted in a pasture, even if dehorned, as all bulls should be. Even an ugly ram has been known to kill a man. Savage dogs ought not to be necessary on a farm. But you find them, and often they find you first.

"Farm machinery, such as corn shredders, take a toll of limbs that would be prevented to a large degree if the most ordinary safety devices were installed and kept in working

Making Thrashing Safe.

"In some states the boiler inspection laws do not apply to steam thrashers. Every thrashing machine owner ought to have his boller inspected once a year, whether there is a legal requirement or not.

"I could talk for another hour or so on farm accident breeders that might be eradicated. A country doctor's practice is full of them; but here we are at the house. Come in to dinner before you go back."

"Much oblig d," returned Brown, as be cramped his flivver around in the roadway. "I guess I'll hurry back to the farm and fix up a few things before the neighbors have to get up a stronger growing sorts do not have bee' to tide me over a broken leg."

CONTROL PEACH-TREE BORER

Pest Can Ec Destroyed by the Application of Para-Dichlorobenzene Around Trees.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The so-called peach-tree borer has constituted one of the principal drawbacks to the successful cultivation of the peach for 150 years, and only within five years have effective and practical means of control been discovered.

The para-dichlorobenzene treatment Bureau of Entomology, United States 'n you have!" Department of Agriculture, is described in Farmers' Bulletin 1246, "The Peach Borer: How to Prevent or Lessen Its Ravages," by Dr. A. L. Quain-insect investigations, The peach borer is the larva of a beautiful clear-winged moth. It feeds on the inner bark at the base of the tree or on the adjacent roots, seriously injuring and frequently killing the trees attacked. Few American insects have been more experimented with by entomolgists and others than the peach borer.

As a result of experiments begun by the department in 1915, it was found that this pest could be largely destroyed by the application of paradicholorobenzene, which is a volatile of the clean splits can be repaired moral and intellectual pre-eminence of by bolting, but where the break is badly splintered and shattered it is necessary to remove the entire limb.

In repairing a limb which has split down and is still clinging to the main branch, it is first lifted back into position. This is done by roping the down brushing a man's hair the way he limb to a secure branch higher up. For heavy limbs a block and tackle is employed to bring the limb back into normal position, Then bolts are placed through the break to hold the timb securely in position. A bolt is usually put through near the upper and lower part of the break and with long splits one or more bolts are placed in the center part of the break.

CLOSE PRUNING FOR PEACHES

Greater Amount of Fruit-Bearing Wood the Larger Will Be Yield-Make Picking Easier.

It is not always an easy job to tell just how much pruning a peach tree requires. However, peach trees are short lived and often require more pruning than any other fruit. As the fruit buds are borne on the current year's wood it requires closer pruning to keep the tree manageable. Then, too, the operation increases the vigor of the tree and also makes the picking easier. The greater the amount of fruit-bearing wood the more heavy will be the yield. As the hardy sorte are usually weak in growth, they require more severe pruning than the more delicate varieties. And again the
