Local News

L. W. Waller is doing his own housekeeping at present, Mrs. Waller having been called to Eugene to look after her father, Mr. McGee. She expects to be absent a month.

Monmouth high school and Airlie high school will clash in the Normal gymnasium tonight at 7 sharp. Monmouth defeated Falls City 29 to 9 and Airlie defeated Falls City 18 to 5. Look out for a close game.

G. T. Boothby reports the sale this week of 14 acres belonging to V. Dell Butler, a part of the Butler estate, to Frank Robison for $1750. This land is located north of John Scott's residence and Mr. Robison plans to build a house on it this year. Mr. Robison is a recent resident of Monmouth having come here from Colorado last summer.

Miss Anna Jerzyk, a normal graduate now connected with the Ranier Review, was a visitor in Monmouth Sunday and Monday renewing old acquaintanceships. Miss Jerzyk was returning from the state editorial conference at Eugene and found a number of things at the conference that were very helpful.

Evangelical Church

Mr. Lewis will have charge of both services.

Sunday evening instead of the usual service there will be a musical evening. We promise you a fine time. Our Male Quartet will sing for us. You cannot afford to miss it.

The choir will meet for practice Saturday eve at 7:30.

The Normal chorus, under the direction of Miss Hazel May Loucks, certainly made good last Sunday night.

As Mr. Scott Recalls it.

The following from the Oregonian will awaken recollections in many quarters:

Fifteen years ago the Normal had the champion baseball team of the Willamette valley, a winning basket ball quintet and a football aggregation that held its own against other college elevens. Such is the recollection of John Scott, head janitor, who has completed nearly twenty years of service at the Normal school.

"Circuit Judge Harry Belt was noted as the one armed pitcher of the baseball team during his student days and held his own against the best swatters of the valley," observed Mr. Scott. "Sam Evenden was also a conspicuous figure on the diamond. The girls also gave a good account of themselves in athletics and several times held the inter-collegiate basket ball championship.

Since Mr. Scott started work in 1902 the campus has undergone a complete transformation. Old buildings have been torn away, the grounds laid out anew and modern structures erected on new locations. Even the main building, the first wing of which is the oldest thing on the campus, has been so changed that former students who return are scarcely able to recognize their old haunts. But they all recognize John Scott who with all the responsibility of keeping the Normal plant in working order has not lost any of his geniality.

When Mr. Scott came to Monmouth the old dining hall stood on the southeast corner of the campus and substantial meals were served at $2.25 a week.

"Who were the faculty members when you began," Mr. Scott was asked.

"Mr. Ressler became president the same year I started sweeping the floor," he said.

Then he recalled the names of Mrs. Pennel, now a member of the faculty of the state university; Miss Tuthill, whose students in literature earned their grades, P. O. Powell, now a Monmouth farmer and member of the legislature; Mr. Buckham, a venerable man 80 years old, at one time the teacher of Admiral Dewey. Mr. Buckham died in California about ten years ago. G. A. Forbes coached and pitched for the baseball team that won the championship of the valley. The training school, then called the "T. D." (training department) occupied the north wing of the main building and the lower grades occupied the rooms where the library is now located. Robert C. French was principal of the training department. Later he became educational director of the Portland Y. M. C. A.

"School spirit was rampant in those days," said Mr. Scott. "I remember when the classes had a scrap for the possession of a class flag. A hot fight took place on a long ladder that reached from the ceiling of the chapel to the belfry. Then there was a scuffle in the belfry and I thought somebody was going to get hurt."

Mr. Scott recalled the time when the normal building caught fire and the work performed by the faculty, students and citizens in saving the building. A bucket brigade was formed reaching to the roof, and several daring athletes ran along the cone with buckets of water. One of Mr. Scott's assistants fell through the roof 40 feet to the chapel floor.
