Dallas School Man is Auto Accident Victim

Joseph A. Griffin, 32 years old, athletic director and instructor of manual training at the Dallas high school died at a Salem hospital at about 3 o'clock Monday morning following an automobile accident which occurred on the Dallas road about three miles from Salem shortly before 12 o'clock Sunday night.

Griffin sustained a fracture at the base of the brain when the car he was driving turned turtle. John Friesen, also of Dallas, who was the only other passenger in the car, was not injured but received a severe shock and was confined in the hospital for a time.

Available details concerning the accident were few, but it is believed the automobile turned over when a rear wheel was lost. Griffin, unconscious, was found near the road a few minutes later by George G. Duldager and J. M. McCourt, Willamette university students, who rushed him to a Salem hospital. Physicians were called immediately, but were unable to save his life.

Griffin, who went to Dallas from Blaine, Wash., to become a teacher in the Dallas school last September, had recently accepted employment for the summer in the Dallas planning mill, in which Friesen is interested. The two men left Dallas for Salem about 11 o'clock.

The jury impanelled by Coroner Chapman to investigate, returned a verdict blaming the accident on the use of liquor by Griffin and Friesen.

In its report the jury recommended that Friesen's drivers license be revoked for a period of one year.

While no visible evidence that Griffin and Friesen had been drinking was presented at the inquest, Vern Friar, who had been riding in the car with the two men previous to the accident, testified that he believed that they had been drinking. Friar said that he rode around Dallas with Griffin and Friesen earlier in the evening and started to Salem with them about 11 o'clock, but left the car before they reached Rickreall.

Friesen testified that Griffin was driving at the time the car left the road and turned over. He said that Griffin had asked to drive several times during the evening and that he had let him take the wheel at Brunk's corner, three miles west of the scene of the accident.

Friar confirmed Friesen's statement that Griffin had asked to drive several times.

E. C. Kirkpatrick, J. R. Sibley, Tracy Staats, J. R. Algood, O. C. Smith and Walter Wing made up the jury which returned the following report:

"Inasmuch as the evidence shows that intoxicating liquor contributed to the probable cause of the accident, the jury recommends that the owner of said automobile, John Friesen, have his driver's license revoked for a period of one year from the date of revocation."

Mr. Griffin is survived by a wife who resides at Bellingham, Wash., and by his mother who lives at Morton, Wash.

The Elizabeth Clarke house of a year ago would not know itself if it was to meet its present form in broad daylight. Mrs. Emma Hinshow of Falls City called at the home of Mrs. Dewitt Friday, the guest of Mrs. Singleton.

Chautauqua Season Starts Wednesday

Monmouth's third annual Chautauqua starts Wednesday, July 5. In all three seasons the local promoters have signed up with the Cadmean institution and if the success of both of the previous programs is to be repeated it will be only what is to be expected. This year's programs are of a different class than either of the two others. The first year we started with the company's smallest program, five days. The house was oversold, the tent proved too small, but the quality of the show recommended the six day program for the second year. The company still puts out five and six day programs but is making a specialty of a five day program in which they have crowded the best of the six day attractions and which they call their deluxe program. It is obtained on a straight guarantee of $1,000 and what is sold above that figure is returned to the local promoters.

The program in full is given on another page.

The first day, Wednesday, features Staples & Co. You will get a trip through the land of magic and then with a sudden shift, travel to the field of art and then something that will make the children laugh. In addition at night Albert L. Blair will deliver a lecture on "The Whirl of the Newspaper Press". Mr. Blair has done newspaper work for thirty years and has served in every capacity from the devil up to editor of a metropolitan daily. To show how popular his lecture is, he had delivered it 1461 times up to starting the present Chautauqua season.

Thursday the Haseltine Opera Singers will come. They are of a distinguished family who have studied abroad and will give selections from grand and light opera as well as concert numbers. Bill Bone, lecturer, will conclude the evening program with his poetic lecture "The House of Man". He has endeared himself to the minds and hearts of a multitude of people and to miss his lecture will be to miss one of the best events of the Chautauqua.

Friday the "Maids O' Dundee" will appear in afternoon and evening programs. There are six of them, dressed in the captivating plaids and kilts of the highlands, singing their songs and doing their dances. Their approach perfection in the Chautauqua world and if you hear them in the afternoon you will want to return in the evening.

Saturday the Maurice Drew players will appear in the afternoon in Comedy and Drama and in the evening in an all star cast playing "Cappy Ricks". This is the first time anything as ambitious has been presented in local Chautauqua. In the afternoon a native of India, Solomon Ramalingam will do a travelogue "Through India with Me".

Sunday Loseff's Russian Orchestral Quartette will appear afternoon and evening and at night C. L. Burgderfer will deliver a humorous lecture.

All Sunday programs are changed or modified to accord with the spirit of the day.

To accommodate Normal students the afternoon programs are set at 3:15 and the evening programs start as usual at 8 o'clock.

Season tickets are sold at $2.00, high school and Normal students $1.50 and children $1, with 10 per cent added for war tax in each instance. By single admissions the total adult tickets will cost including war tax $5.60 and the advantage of having a season ticket is obvious.

Pastor from Philadelphia

Rev. George Swope of Philadelphia was a visitor in Monmouth Monday with his brother, Attorney B. F. Swope of Independence. The two Swopes, who came to Oregon from Missouri, started in business together in the legal profession in Oregon City. Before they practiced long, however, George decided to become a preacher and went to a theological school in Louisville, Kentucky to study. This was fourteen years ago.

In the time that has elapsed since he graduated he took a charge in Nashville, Tennessee, was two years in South Carolina and also saw service in Virginia. He was engaged as pastor of one of the large Baptist churches in Philadelphia a little over two years ago. He is at present out on a two months vacation which was voted him by his congregation at full salary.

While in Oregon Mr. Swope took an active interest in politics as a Republican but says that when he went to live in the south he saw that if he retained his political standing he might "salve his pride with the idea that he was loyal to his principles but could hope for no political influence. As a Democrat, however, he could throw his influence for the men who might seem most useful to the state and thus could use his suffrage right to some advantage; so he became a Democrat. When he was called to Pennsylvania the conditions became reversed so he registered as a Republican and as such had a share in the move which resulted in the triumph of Gifford Pinchot. Rev. Swope occupied the Baptist pulpit in Independence last Sunday.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Odd Fellows Building Company Wednesday evening it was decided to employ George Viesko of Salem as foreman on the brick-laying for the new hall. The work
