Hazel Bursell Makes Good

Hazel Bursell, '22, a graduate in home economics, in charge of a department on the American Fruit Growers' magazine, has been highly commended on her work on that publication, according to a letter received today. The letter was from C. I. Lewis, now managing editor of this magazine, to C. J. McIntosh, professor in industrial journalism.

Miss Bursell was well known as a writer and editor while in college. She majored in home economics and in addition took courses in industrial journalism. She was women's editor on the Barometer staff, '22, editor of the Co-ed Barometer, '22, and home economics editor on the staff of the Oregon Countryman. She was also a member of Omricon Nu and Scribe. Mr. Lewis says that her ability has been recognized and her manager has extensive plans for her department of the magazine.—Corvallis Gazette-Times.

EDUCATORS HIT THE SCHOOL BILL

College Heads of National Repute Score So-called Educational Measure.

Active steps are being taken by opponents of the so-called compulsory education bill, which will be on the November ballot, to inform the voters of their reasons why this proposed law should not pass. Various Protestant denominations having vital interests at stake have established general headquarters on the fifth floor of the Consolidated Securities building, Portland.

From this office is being disseminated literature and information concerning the bill. The organization is named Non-Sectarian and Protestant Schools Committee for Freedom in Education. W. L. Brewster, ex-city commissioner, and at present a member of the Portland library board, is the chairman. Joseph A. Hill, principal of the Hill Military academy, Portland, an old established non-sectarian school for boys, is executive secretary.

That the proposed bill is causing widespread interest throughout the entire United States and that it is drawing comment from the country's foremost educators, none of whom, thus far, has been favorable to its provisions, is the declaration of Mr. Hill.

Adverse criticism has been received from Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, who concluded his letter by saying:

"This bill should be entitled 'A bill to make impossible the American system of education in Oregon.' It is fundamentally un-American in its principle and purpose and should be overwhelmingly defeated."

"The task of educating all the children of America is great enough to make right thinking men welcome the co-operation of every proper private and public effort to this end," comments Robert E. Vinson, president of the University of Texas.

Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, says he believes the proposed law would "violate fundamental rights of American citizens with regard to the education of their children."

"It certainly looks like an attempt to give the majority of the people a dangerous power to restrict the diffusion of truth which it wishes to suppress," is the way Arthur Hadlev, president of Yale university, sizes up the bill's provisions. "These comments are by unprejudiced men of the highest standing, who have no interest other than the public interest," said Mr. Hill. "It is a good sidelight on the local situation from unbiased sources."

Private Schools Efficient.

Private schools, all of which are under state supervision anyway, are standardized, efficient, are NOT a menace; they teach American principles and ideals. Why close them, as the so-called compulsory education bill proposes to do?

A shipment of 25 boxes of Newtowns and 15 boxes of Spitsenberg apples from Portland to Buenos Aires aboard the steamer West Katan may revolutionize the movement of Pacific north west apples to South America. The test shipment is to determine whether the apples will carry to the Argentine without refrigeration by Pacific coast wise vessels.

Albany merchants will organize a chapter of the Oregon Retail Merchants' association.

The city water of Eugene is also lately pure and the malady that is now prevalent among students of the University of Oregon is not the result of contaminated water, according to Professor Sweetser, head of the department of botany and bacteriology at the university.

Validation by the state supreme court last week of the organization and $160,000 bond election proceedings of the Central Oregon Irrigation district will mean that the district can start immediately on the construction of the flume south of Bend, replacing the worn-out structure now in use.

Another source of supply of timber for the sawmill at Garibaldi has been procured by the Whitney company, which concern has contracted for 30,000,000 feet of choice pine and hemlock situated on Kiger hill, a mile and a half to two miles east of Garibaldi, which property is owned by George Kiger of Tillamook.

UNFAIR And UNNECESSARY TAX

The Taxpayers' League of Portland are advising the voters here to vote against the Fair measure for the reason that taxes should not be used for purposes of this nature.

We advise the taxpayers of your community to do the same, you cannot escape your proportion of this tax no matter what the proponents of the Fair may say to the contrary. Therefore, vote 305 NO, so as not to increase your now overburdensome tax.
