SPIDER NOT REALLY INSECT

Fundamental Difference Which Has Been Recognized by Those Who Have Studied the Subject.

Spiders and their near relatives, the scorpions, are much more closely related to lobsters than they are to true insects. Spiders and insects are both small, both have a number of legs, and both appear superficially alike. The differences between them, however, are of a major sort.

First, as you will see if you examine one, a spider has no head. All real insects have heads. Herein lies a most fundamental difference. A spider's face comes directly to the thorax, like that of a crawfish. Every insect has eyes, both compound and simple. The compound eyes are usually large, occupying half or more of the entire head. Between them, in what would be the middle of the forehead, are three simple eyes. Spiders have eight (in some species only six) simple eyes. Each one is fixed and can see in one direction only. Some look forward; some sideways, and some upward, so that spiders are not blind by any means.

Advice Was Disastrous.

He was a newly admitted member of the ranks of married men and after having behaved himself for a period long enough to cause amazement to all those who had known him in the old days he broke out. He was on his way home very much under the weather and growing more timid as his street neared, says a New York Sun writer. "What'll I do?" he asked thickly of his companion in crime, a veteran ben-ellet.

"Throw your hat in first," said the old-timer. "If it comes out, beat it; if not, follow it in." The advice was acted upon literally and now the newly admitted member and the old veteran are on the outs. The hat flung into the dining room landed on the table, broke two glasses, split a bottle of catsup on the floor and ruined the carpet, upset the table oil lamp and almost set fire to the house.

Health Talks by Radio.

In his nationwide campaign to prevent the spread of disease and to give impetus to his efforts for the medical education of the country, Dr. Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon-general of the United States Public Health service, has turned to the radio. Twice each week he sends his messages from the government radio station at Washington and from commercial stations. The surgeon-general is a Virginian and was graduated in medicine from the University of Virginia. For a number of years he was quarantine officer at Hampton Roads, and most of his work prior to his present duties, had to do with quarantine regulations. At the time of his appointment he was in Naples fighting a typhoid epidemic.—New York Herald.

A Tribute to our Mother

Oh! Mother dear, how we miss you. We will always remember your sweet smiles and tender loving disposition; always trying to make sunshine in our lives when darkness hovered round. Yes, mother we miss you, thou sweetest of all mothers to us, but your spirit will always live to guide us around the rough places.

In John 14 we find comfort as we read the promise of "mansions on high" and that Christ will come to receive us.

Oh mother; we are lonely, oh so lonely, but we wouldn't call you back if we could, to this world of sorrow and pain. You have borne your share and borne it bravely. 'Tis sweet to think of you in that beautiful home where we all hope to meet you and others loved ones who have gone before. Father, mother, sister, you all beckon us to heaven.

In Matt. 5, Christ in his sermon on the mount describes a Christian life, and as we read on and find the 44th verse. We know, mother, that you followed its teachings, time after time we heard you pray for God's blessings on your loved ones and forgiveness to all. What a beautiful thing to do. Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you and pray for them which despitefully use you.

KULLANDER'S DAUGHTER UNDERGOES OPERATION

The two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kullander, Shirley May, was successfully operated upon in the Good Samaritan hospital, Portland, for hip displacement, Monday. A like operation was performed upon an Armour girl in Chicago nearly a score of years ago by the celebrated Dr. Lorenz of Vienna, and since that time there have been many similar operations. Born with one hip displaced, the operation is to restore it to its normal position. It requires only a few minutes to do it, but it will be necessary that she wear a plaster cast from the knee and extending around the body, for eight months or

The Chevrolet

In 1922 Chevrolet jumped from seventh to second place in sales of all cars, and to first place in sales of fully equipped modern cars.

Purchases by farmers were the chief factor in this remarkable development.

Farmers want automobiles not only of low first price, but also of low later cost for operation and maintenance.

They want room, comfort, and ability to stand up under hard conditions. They find that Chevrolet, fully equipped as sold, is the best value per dollar in the low priced field, and neighbors tell them it costs less per mile to operate.
