FAUNCES TAVERN

Faunces Tavern at the southeast corner of Broad and Pearl streets in New York City is one of the oldest buildings in that great city. Built in 1719 as a residence for a Mr. DeLancey, fate decreed that it should play a prominent part on so many important occasions that it has naturally won for itself a place of prominence among the most distinguished landmarks of our time. History records that in 1757 this building was being used as a store-room and warehouse. Later it became the property of a West Indian gentleman who was known as "Black Sam," from whom Samuel Faunces purchased it in 1762. Three years later it passed to a new owner and in 1768 the organization of the Chamber of Commerce was effected here. Faunces again became the owner of this much-traded building in 1770 and in it conducted a tavern—a gathering place for those gentlemen and ladies who wished to favor him with their company.

A shot from a man-of-war struck this building in 1775, following which Faunces joined the American army. Later he again secured ownership of this hotel and continued in possession of it for a number of years.

In 1783 General George Washington was banqueted here by Governor Clinton of New York state, and in this same building during the same year General Washington took his leave of his forty-four officers.

Faunces sold this building in 1785 and it later passed through a series of ownerships and usages. In 1832 the interior was damaged by fire. Twenty years later it became known as the Broad Street House. Subsequently it was visited by a disastrous fire and still later two stories were added to it.

The venerable building was once more restored and in 1907 it was dedicated by the Sons of the Revolution. Restored to its former appearance and interior arrangement, the present structure is practically as it was during the Revolutionary period. The first floor is still used as a restaurant, the second containing the celebrated long room where General Washington took leave of his faithful lieutenants of Revolutionary fame and the third being occupied as a museum contains relics—flags, china, medals, etc., of Revolutionary days.

CANDLES ALWAYS IN DEMAND

For Excellent Reason That They Are Unfailing Emergency Light When Fuses Blow Out.

Candles, as a means of lighting, seem not only crude but impossible to us today, and yet but a generation or so ago there were no electric lights and our homes were lighted with gas. And before the days of gas lighting and oil lamps there were but candles to depend upon. And so the present-day flare for fancy candles and candlesticks is not perhaps without its foundation in a certain inherited tendency.

Anyhow candles are filling a wider need in our daily life, for with all of the newer more modern apartments equipped exclusively with electric lights and with the gas jets of the older houses sawed off and plugged there remains but one thing in an emergency should a fuse blow out and leave us in darkness—the oldtime tried candle of our forefathers.

"That is the main reason for the popularity of the candle in the decorative scheme of today," said a hostess. "It is simply that people have to keep them on hand for emergencies."

"There are people who desire a less harsh light and who sometimes switch off the electric lights that they may bask in the mellow softness of the candlelight parties. Candles as a decoration may go out of style, but candles for the purpose of giving light will always be with us."

BIG CITY'S FASHIONABLE DOGS

Different Localities Have Their Favorites, and the Styles Seem to Come and Go.

With any small boy color, style, markings, breed, count for naught. With him the dog's the thing, and any pup that runs on four feet and is willing to come to the call of Pete or Rags or Dusty fills the bill. Not so his fashionable sisters.

Some years ago Boston bulls were the favored, says the New York Sun. Then came Alredales. Now, they say, wire-haired terriers are the only stylish members of dogdom. Well, it's a short life and a pampered one on Park avenue and Fifth.

But go a bit east, over where the buildings are referred to as tenements. Go a bit north, and then stroll over west, always keeping away from "apartments." In tenement land man's four-footed friend is much in evidence. But apparently the dog lover in these quarters follows some mysterious fashion, too. It is always the same kind of dog that is to be seen. So alike are they that it is hard to realize that the one noticed a minute ago is not the one now being looked at. Always a small, curly-haired poodle, color originally white, but a winter of soft-coal furnaces leaves an indelible mark.

Stock Comes Far to Pacific International

The Pacific International Live Stock Exposition is held in Portland, Or., but it is "true to name." Livestock of the best herds comes from all parts of the continent to fight out the last battle for supremacy in its show ring. Animals that win the purple ribbons at the Pacific International are as good as the best anywhere.

The lower panel of the picture shows the Thorp string of Jerseys from California. They will be at the Exposition in Portland November 3 to 10 to see if they are as good as the Jerseys of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and elsewhere. They have good Jerseys in California, but they will meet the best of the West at Portland.

The insert above shows three very tippy Shorthorns that are coming to our exposition. They are owned by H. C. Lookabaugh of Oklahoma. They will help make up a wonderful string, but they will have to look their prettiest and beefiest if they win against the other Shorthorn herds to be shown this year.

Judges, without exception, will be men of national experience, and great ability. The judging alone is worth a trip to see and hear.

There is no livestock show held anywhere in America that surpasses that of the Pacific International. And the best of it is that it is near.

wholly silent, although so little life is manifest at that season. The testimony offered by an American explorer makes this fact very clear.

All movements of the ice—the gradual crowding and pressing, bending and pushing, the breaking of masses of snow lying at the "ice foot"—do not proceed noiselessly, but are generally accompanied by certain sounds which are called the "voices" of the ice.

Now one hears a low, singing, spashing or grumbling, alternating with various other noises, cracking and snapping; now it sounds irregularly from a great distance, like a confusion of human voices, the clanging din of a train or a sledging party; or you fancy you can hear the steps and voices of all sorts of animals.

There is, it is said, a charm in listening to those sounds on a still night.—Washington Star.

Alas for Fame!

Here are two good examples of English knowledge of America, taken from a small book of essays edited by Blackwell and Makower, published by the Oxford Press, and intended for use in English high schools and colleges:

"The literary societies in American colleges are often termed Phi Beta Kappa, the initials of their Greek motto."

"Cape Cod—the name given to the whole peninsula—about 65 miles long—which ends in the promontory of the same name. It forms part of the

Not Exactly Piety.

Young Albert was usually a source of much annoyance to his mother during the morning service. But this morning she was filled with pride at her young hopeful's attitude as she saw him sitting with clasped hands and bowed head throughout a particularly long prayer. When they were returning home mother expressed her appreciation of his pious manner of attendance, whereupon the lad's face lighted up as he chuckled:

"That fly walked in and out of my hands exactly 250 times."

Odd Disposition of Dead.

Natives of the Solomon islands elevate their dead on pedestals. The more respected the departed the more elaborate is his bier. The superstitious natives believe that every person has a ghost that will be active in worldly affairs as was the corporeal object before death. Sometimes the native dead are cremated. Gifts of food are placed near by. It is "taboo" to pass behind these burial platforms.

Contracted Cold at a Billy Sunday Revival

Developed Into Systemic Catarrh
 Recommends PE-RU-NA

Mr. A. R. Wilson, LaFollette, Tenn.

The letter written a short time ago by Mr. A. R. Wilson of LaFollette, Tenn., brings some more direct evidence of the value of Pe-ru-na in the treatment of catarrhal diseases.

It reads as follows:—"While attending Billy Sunday's great revival at Knoxville, Tenn., last February I contracted a cold which weakened my entire system. I have taken only three bottles of Pe-ru-na and feel like a new man. It is a great system builder, as well as a great catarrh remedy."

To attempt to even estimate the thousands who, in the last half century, have come to know and appreciate the merits of Pe-ru-na would be more than useless. The number is astonishing and increasing daily.

Your nearest dealer has Pe-ru-na in both tablet and liquid form. Insist upon having Pe-ru-na, the original treatment for catarrh.
